INTRODUCTORY.

MOORE'S HOOSIER CYCLOPEDIA is a compilation of Statistical, Official, Historical, Political and General Information, having for its particular field the great State of Indiana.

It is designed to be a concise, complete, up-to-date and thoroughly reliable reference work for the busy Farmer, Merchant, Lawyer, Educator, Politician, or other citizen, business or professional man, who desires to know something of the men and machinery of current administration, party leadership, official tenures, salaries, etc., latest census and voting statistics, farming statistics, and numberless disconnected facts pertaining to the State and its officials and various institutions, that outside of this work would have to be sought from a score of different sources.

The plan of the work is new and original, and we confidently believe nothing approaching it in detail and thoroughness, and educational value for citizens of Indiana, in reference to the State and its government, institutions, officials, and affairs generally, has heretofore been produced.

It will be noted also, that in treating the important subjects of Population and Voting statistics, Apportionment of Representation, Illiteracy Among Voters, etc., its scope is extended to take in all of the States and the Nation as a whole, thus broadening and making complete its value as a reference work.

It is carefully indexed, so that reference can be made to any subject without trouble or delay.

TERRITORIAL GROWTH AND PRESENT AREA OF THE UNITED STATES.

The gross area of the United States at each ten year period from 1790 to 1900 was as follows: In 1790 and 1800, 827,844 square miles; in 1810, 1,999,775 square miles, and in 1820, 2,059,043 square miles. From 1820 there was no change until 1850, at which date the area was 2,980,959 square miles In 1860 it was 3,025,600 square miles, and in 1870, 3,616,484. In 1880 and 1890 it remained the same, but in 1900 the country's area had grown to 3,622,933 square miles, not including the Philippines, Porto Rico, or other territory wrested from Spain in the War of 1898.

‡ Decrease.

POPULATION NOTES.

Only one state suffered a decrease in population from 1890 to 1900, and that was Nevada. The decrease was 3,426, or 7.5 per cent. Nebraska's gain was very small, being but one-tenth of one per cent. The largest relative gains were shown by Oklahoma, Indian Territory and Arizona, viz. 544.2, 117 5 and 104.9 per cent, respectively.

The comparatively high rates of gain for most of the Southern States is pointed to as an indication of the industrial awakening of that section.

All changes in population, both by number and by per cent, are shown in the foregoing table.

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

The "Electoral College", which selects the President and Vice President of the United States in Presidential years, is made up of as many electors as there are Senators and Representatives in the National Legislature. Each state is entitled to two Senators, and no more, while the number of Representatives varies according to population. To determine the voting strength of any state in the Electoral College, therefore, add two to the number of its Representatives in Congress as shown by the foregoing table. Thus Indiana has 13 Representatives, and adding 2 for her two Senators, makes 15, the number of electors the state will be entitled to at the next Presidential Election. The whole number of Representatives (see table) is 386. There are 45 states, with two Senators each, making 90 Senators in all; 90 plus 386 equals 476, which represents the number of Electors that will compose the next Electoral College.

SEX, COLOR AND NATIONALITY, AND NUMBER OF PERSONS OF MILITARY AND SCHOOL AGE.

Of the 76, 303,387 persons composing the population of the United States, 39,059.242 are males, and 37,244,145 females; 65,843,302 are native born, and 10,460,085 are foreign born. Divided as to color and nationality, 66,990,802 are white, and 9,312,585 are colored. The colored population is made up of 8,840,789 negroes, or persons of negro descent, 119,050 Chinese, 85,986 Japanese, and 266,760 Indians.

There are 26,110,788 persons in the United States of school age, that is, from 5 to 20 years, inclusive. In Indiana, the number is 843,885.

There are in the United States, 16,360,363 persons of militia age. The number in Indiana is 530,615.

CENTER OF POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES.

For the last two Census Decades the Center of Population of the United States has been located in Indiana. In 1890 it was near Greensburg in Decatur county, and in 1900 near Columbus, in Bartholomew county. The distance traveled in ten years was only about 20 miles, which is the shortest move this interesting imaginary point, representing the center of gravity of the country's population, has ever made. This shows that the increase and expansion of population in all directions has been nearly uniform during the last ten years.

Beginning with the Census of 1790, which was the first, the center of population has traveled from near Baltimore, Maryland, to its present location at Columbus, Indiana, a distance of 500 miles. And in this long westward course it has followed right along the 39th parallel, with but slight variations either to the north or to the south.

The distance traveled during each decade from 1790 to 1830 was approximately 40 miles. From 1830 to 1840, the distance covered was nearly 50 miles, and from 1840 to 1850, 45 miles; from 1850 to 1860, a 90 mile stride was taken, and from 1860 to 1870, the old pace of 40 miles to the decade was resumed. From 1870 to 1880, a forward move of sixty miles was made; from 1880 to 1890, about 42 miles, and from 1890 to 1900, the pace slowed down to 20 miles, as stated. At this rate Indiana will continue to be the "hub" of the Union for sometime to come.

CLASSIFICATION OF CITIES IN INDIANA.

Indiana cities are divided into five classes, as follows:

First Class—Cities of 100,000 population or over.

Second Class—Cities of 45,000 population and less than 100,000.

Third Class—Cities of 20,000 population and less than 45,000.

Fourth Class—Cities of 10,000 population and less than 20,000.

Fifth Class—Cities of less than 10,000 population.

A town to be eligible to organize a city government must have a population of at least 2,000.

LAND AREA, DENSITY OF POPULATION, AND RANK.

The total land surface of Indiana is approximately, 35,910 square miles.

The density of population of Indiana, i. e. the number of inhabitants to the square mile, was 4.1 in 1820; 9.6 in 1830; 19.1 in 1840; 27.5 in 1850; 37.6 in 1860; 46.8 in 1870; 55.1 in 1880; 61.1 in 1890; and 70.1 in 1900. For the whole United States the density of population has increased from 3.7 inhabitants to the square mile in 1810, to 25.6 in 1900.

Following are a few of the most thickly inhabited states, with their density of population in 1900: Rhode Island, 407.0; Massachusetts, 348.9; New Jersey, 250.3; Connecticut, 187.5; New York, 152.6; Pennsylvania, 140.1; Maryland, 120.5; Ohio, 102.0; Delaware, 94.3; Illinois, 86.1. and Indiana. 70.1.

A few of the most sparsely settled states, with their density of population are: Arizona, 1.1; California, 9.5; Colorado, 5.2; Florida, 9.7; Idaho, 1.9; Montana, 1.7; Nevada, 0.4; New Mexico, 1.6; North Dakota, 4.5; Oregon, 4.4; South Dakota, 5.2; Utah, 3.4; Washington, 7.7; and Wyoming, 0.9.

Indiana ranks 8th among the states in point of population, those above her on the scale being New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, Texas, Massachusetts. Indiana's position was the same in 1890, the same states ranking above her.

In addition to the foregoing vote for 1904, 33,612 votes were cast for Corrigan, the Socialist Labor candidate; 830 votes (in Illinois) for a so-called "Continental" ticket, and 2,568 votes (in Pennsylvania) for Parker and Davis on an independent electoral ticket. The grand total for all candidates was 13,510,648.

Roosevelt and Fairbanks' plurality, 2,536,282, surpasses all previous records. They carried 32 out of the 45 States, and received 336 out of the 476 votes in the Electoral College. The table would indicate that they carried 33 States and Parker and Davis only 12; but as a matter of fact the Democrats carried Maryland on all except the first elector on the ballot. The State's electoral vote was accordingly divided, one going to Roosevelt and Fairbanks and five to Parker and Davis. In making up the popular vote, the vote for the first elector on the ballot is used.

Roosevelt and Fairbanks had 1,725,017 more votes than all other candidates combined. In 1900, McKinley received 477,303 more votes than all other candidates. His plurality over Bryan was 861,912. The total popular vote in 1900 was 13,963,053.

In 1900, McKinley carried 28 States, and Bryan 17. McKinley received 292 votes in the Electoral College, and Bryan 155. (There were 29 more votes in the Electoral College in 1904 than in 1900.)

The total vote cast for all parties in the Presidential election of 1904 was 682,466. The total vote at the Presidential election of 1900 was 664,094. The Republican plurality in 1900 was 26,479, as against 94,203 in 1904.

The Prohibition vote in 1900 was 13,718; People's Party, 1,438; Socialists, 2,374; Socialist Labor, 663. A comparison of these figures with the vote for 1904, as shown by the foregoing table, will indicate the growth of the minor parties.

INDIANA'S VOTE AT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS, 1820-1904

Indiana cast her first electoral vote for President in 1820, and it was registered for James Monroe. Since then her electoral votes have been cast as follows: In 1824, 1828 and 1832, for Andrew Jackson; in 1836 and 1840, for William Henry Harrison; in 1844, for James K. Polk; in 1848, for Lewis Cass; in 1852, for Franklin Pierce; in 1856, for James Buchanan; in 1860 and 1864, for Abraham Lincoln; in 1868 and 1872, for Ulysses S. Grant; in 1876, for Samuel J. Tilden; in 1880, for James A. Garfield; in 1884, for Grover Cleveland; in 1888, for Benjamin Harrison; in 1892, for Grover Cleveland; in 1896 and 1900, for William McKinley; in 1904, for Theodore Roosevelt.

QUALIFICATIONS OF VOTERS IN INDIANA.

A person to be permitted to vote, must be a male citizen 21 years old or over, or a male 21 years or over who shall have declared his intention of becoming a citizen.

The voter must have resided in the State at least six months, in the township 60 days, and in the precinct 30 days, immediately preceding the election.

This does not apply in the sense of actual bodily residence to persons who have an established citizenship. As, for instance, a citizen of Indiana may be absent from the State five years or longer, so he does not establish a regular home, or vote elsewhere, and can return and vote the same day of his arrival. The residence conditions apply to persons making actual removals, and offering to vote at places where they were not accustomed to vote before.

An unmarried man may claim his residence and vote almost anywhere he pleases, so he does no act inconsistent with his claim.

Voters disabled physically, or who are unable to read the English language, may be assisted by the poll clerks in making out their ballots. In all other cases the voting must be secret.

Any citizen is entitled to challenge an illegal voter.

A challenged voter can "swear in" his ballot, but may be prosecuted afterward if the vote is illegal.

FILING CERTIFICATES OF NOMINATION.

Certificates of nomination for State offices must be filed with the Governor not more than 60 nor less than 20 days before the election.

Certificates of nomination for State Senator, State Representative or Congressman must be filed with the Clerk of each county in the district not more than 60 nor less than 15 days before the election.

Certificates of nomination for county offices must be filed with the Clerk not more than 60 nor less than 15 days before the election, and the same provisions apply generally to city and town and township elections.

STATISTICS OF ILLITERACY AMONG WHITE AND COLORED VOTERS.

There are in the United States 19,036,143 white male citizens 21 years of age and over. Of this number 17,781,856 are literate, that is, able to read and write, and 1,254,287 are illiterate, or unable to read or write. There are 2,293,676 colored male citizens 21 years of age and over, and 1,221,668 are literate and 1,072,008 illiterate.

Of the white male citizens 21 years old and over, therefore, 6.6 per cent. are illiterate, while of the colored citizens 46.7 per cent. are illiterate.

In Indiana the white male citizens 21 years of age and over number 701,761, and 34,903, or 5 per cent. of them are illiterate. The colored male citizens 21 years old and over number 18,445, and 5,113, or 27.7 per cent. are illiterate.

Thus it will be seen that the percentage of illiteracy among white voters in Indiana is 1.6 per cent. below the average for the United States, and the percentage for colored voters 19 per cent. lower than the average for their race for the United States.

From the standpoint of education and general intelligence, Indiana ranks high.

The highest percentages of illiteracy, both among white and colored voters, are in the Southern States. For instance the rate for native white voters in Alabama is 14.2 per cent.; in Arkansas, 10.8 per cent.; Georgia, 12.1 per cent.; Kentucky, 15.5 per cent.; Louisiana, 20.3 per cent.; New Mexico, 24.5 per cent.; South Carolina, 12.6 per cent.; Tennessee, 14.5 per cent.

The per cent. of illiteracy for negro voters in the Southern States is proportionately higher. For instance the rate in Louisiana is 61.3 per cent. In Alabama it is 59.5 per cent., while in a number of other States the proportion of illiteracy runs above 50 per cent.

The following States boast the smallest percentages of illiteracy among native whites 21 years old and over: California, 1.1; Connecticut, .9; District of Columbia, 1; Idaho, 1.1; Massachusetts, .6; Minnesota, .7; Montana, .7; Nebraska, 1.1; Nevada, .8; North Dakota, .8; Oregon, 1.1; Washington, .5, and Wyoming, .9.

The percentage of illiterate native white voters for the United States is 5.8. For Indiana it is 4.8. Ohio's percentage is 3.7; Illinois', 3.6; and Michigan's, 2.2. In this latter comparison it will be noted that Indiana gets a little the worst of it.

Historical Sketch of Indiana.

The Mound Builders.

The first human footprints within the bounds of Indiana were not made by the Indians. Moreover, it is an error to assume that the Western world is newer than the Eastern in point of habitation by men. The traces of prehistoric peoples in America give evidence of antedating the mythical history of Greece and Rome, and while the infant race of Egypt and the Nile can boast of a better civilization, it is questionable whether they can boast of an earlier.

The prehistoric people who first trod the pathless, beast-haunted forests of Indiana, and here and there upon high ground built immense earthen works of various forms and designs, are known as mound-builders. No satisfacory theory has yet been advanced as to their origin. Neither has it been determined whither they went. Possibly they met with a similar fate to the people of Noah's time. The Indians knew nothing about these forerunners of civilization, and the mound-builders themselves left nothing that would in the slightest way suggest an explanation.

The rude instruments which they left behind indicate that they were chiefly interested in waging tribal warfare and in procuring the mere necessities in the way of food and clothing. They had for arms crude bows and arrows, clumsy spears, stone axes and knives. For their simple domestic pursuits they provided themselves with flint needles, implements of copper, of stone, and pieces of pottery. They were a savage, brave, and restless people, in their savagery and cruelty very like the Indian race, but in their peaceful pursuits more industrious and persevering. Their mounds in the southern half of Indiana are very numerous and extensive. They are of three general classes, and in view of their purposes may be designated as "burial mounds,"

"temple mounds," and "mounds of habitation." Perhaps the greater number are to be found in Knox and Sullivan counties. Forty large ones and hundreds of smaller ones are located around the city of Vincennes. The "mounds of habitation" served both as places upon which to build their homes as a protection against flood and inundation, and also as fortifications against their enemies.

INDIANS OF INDIANA.

As in the case of the origin of the mound-builders, likewise of the origin of the race of Indians, no satisfactory explanation can be given. The only authentic history concerning them comes from the early explorers and discoverers of America. First were the mound-builders, then were the Indians; but the period which lapsed between may have been thousands of years. When Columbus discovered America, and when the French explorers paddled their canoes over the Great Lakes to the present territorial boundaries of Indiana, they found these strange savage people everywhere in possession.

Two great confederations existed, the Iroquois in the extreme east and northeast, and the Algonquins in the Mississippi Valley and the west. These confederations were bitter enemies and constantly waged an aggressive warfare for supremacy. Of the Algonquins in Indiana were the Miamis, which themselves were divided up into several smaller tribes (Twightwees, Weas, Piankashaws, Schockneys, Wyandots, Shawnees, Pottawattamies), which occupied different portions of the State and parts of Ohio. Just prior to the coming of the French, the Miamis had been worsted in a conflict with the Iroquois, and were greatly reduced in numbers. This condition perhaps accounts for their willingness to make the French their friends in the hope of later using them as allies.

The fiercest of the Miami tribes were the Shawnees, who occupied Rush and Fayette counties, and the contiguous territory as far south as the Ohio River. Tecumseh and his brother, the phophet, were of this tribe. The Shawnees were always the enemies of the English and later of the Americans, when either were in control of the country. They were the allies of the French during the Seven Years' War, and fiercely resisted the encroachments of the English settlements which were pushed across the Alleghanies after the retirement of the French. They took an active part against the Americans in the War of Independence, and the Indian War which followed. Under the leadership of Tecumseh, they joined the standard of the British in the War of 1812, and participated in the battle of the Thames, where Tecumseh was killed. It was not until 1814 that the great treaty was made which moved them forever from our boundaries. The Miamis had all the common Indian traits—perfect woodsmen, hunters, warriors, smokers, drinkers, and brutally savage with it all, yet they were not as lazy as most tribes, being willing to occupy themselves to some extent in raising corn, small fruits and vegetables. Some of their descendents chose civilization and remain with us until this day.

First White Explorers in Indiana.

La Salle was the first white man to set foot on Indiana soil. While the records are not wholly reliable and without conflict, historians concede this honor to La Salle. In 1669 this fearless adventurer set out from La China, Canada, in search of the "Great River" which was said to promise the long sought westward passage to China and Japan.

The only natural highways in this wilderness were the lakes, streams and rivers. The passage was by canoes, large enough to carry a few men and some provisions, and small enough to be borne on the shoulders of men over the portages between the headwaters of rivers. His course led him up the St. Lawrence, across Lake Ontario and the portage to the source of the Alleghany River, down that river, and the full length of the Ohio. On his return trip he chose a different route, going by way of the Wabash River, crossing the portage to the Maumee, and thence home again by way of the lakes. While in a sense La Salle took these journeys to satisfy his own adventurous spirit, he was acting as an explorer under the French king. He therefore made some maps and published somewhat definite reports of his findings. These were further supplemented by descriptions and reports by other French explorers, such as Marquette, Hennepin, and Joliet, who were associated with La Salle in many of his expeditions. It was upon these explorations and discoveries that the French laid claim to the vast territory known as the Mississippi Valley.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

La Salle and the other French explorers, traders, and missionaries, who frequented this territory, succeeded in making the Indians their friends, and established a growing trade in peltries, without any idea of permanently locating. In 1715 there came rumors to the French that the English were prospecting with a view to occupying the Indian country. It thus became apparent that permanent posts, occupied by people holding allegiance to the French king, and flying the French flag, were needed. Accordingly the following ones were established as early as 1720: Vincennes on the lower Wabash; Ouiatenon (Lafayette) on the upper Wabash; and Post Miami (Ft. Wayne) on the Maumee. Meanwhile, Vincennes grew into a straggling village, made up of rude log houses built very close together. Concerning this village W. H. Smith writes:

"The Indians gave to the Post a large tract of land for the use of the settlers. This land was held in common and not subdivided to the people. It was held really to belong to the French king, and not to the people. Grants from this tract were given from time to time to individual holders by the Governor of Vincennes, but the bulk was held in common. The settlers remained upon the most friendly terms with the Indians, and many of the men took Indian wives. The people were careless, indolent and in the main idle. They made no effort to settle and improve the surrounding country, but were contented to live within the Post, and from it cultivate some portions of the outlying land, and when the harvest was over they gave themselves up again to idleness and pleasure, that is, such pleasure as could be found in a small settlement so far removed from civilization. The only news they received from the outside world was by the occasional arrival of a canoe from Lake Erie, or from New Orleans. To get enough to eat and drink was seemingly their only object in life. The river furnished fish, the forests, game, and for their other wants they raised wheat, oats, barley, and small quantities of maize. They also cultivated orchards and vineyards, manufacturing the product into wine and cider. In religion they were devout Catholics, and their spiritual wants were attended to by the missionaries. But little attention was paid to education and but few could read or write. This and the other two colonies were planted by France for the sole purpose of making good her claim to the country."

Of the three settlements made, Vincennes may justly claim to be the first.

Changes in Sovereignty.

The English still looked upon the territory with jealous eye, and were ready with the least provocation to trespass upon the French claim. This brought about rivalries which quickly ripened into war between the English and French. First it was a war for the fur trade, and finally a struggle for dominion. In this struggle the English were victorious, and Canada and the territory east of the Mississippi in the year 1760 passed over into the hands of the English.

Prior to this the emissaries of the English had been active in inciting the Indians against the French. The latter now retaliated by stirring up the Indians to hostilities against the English. The numerous plots of the Indians to destroy the English garrisons in 1761 and 1762 were all discovered and outwitted. But the great conspiracy of 1763, formed by Pontiac, was more successful. Of this conspiracy Thompson graphically writes:

"In the fall of 1762 this great savage began to organize an army. He sent emissaries to a large number of Indian tribes inhabiting the territory west of the Alleghanies. These messengers bore each a black wampum and a red tomahawk, signifying war, and they were instructed to arouse the tribes to a concerted general onslaught, with a view to capturing all the English forts and posts. In an amazingly short time, these arrangements were made and the blow fell. Nearly all of the forts were taken. Pontiac himself, at the head of a large force, attempted to get possession of Detroit; but his plan failed, and for many months he besieged the place. He was at last forced to quit the siege on account of expending all his ammunition. When it was gone he had no base of supplies to draw upon, and so was powerless. He withdrew still cherishing his great ambition."

The French had not rallied to his assistance as he had expected, and he decided to make peace with the English, which was done by a formal treaty and delivery of all forts the latter part of the year 1764, and the settlers were free from Indian depredations for the next ten years.

Probably the peace would not have lasted this long had it not been for the death of Pontiac, at the hands of an assassin, in 1769. There was evidence at the time that he was ambitious to form a second conspiracy. Thus closed another chapter in Indian savagery and frontier hardships, and the Indian country was yet unpeopled, as the straggling population at Vincennes, Ouiatenon, and Miami, including Detroit, only numbered six hundred families, now the subjects of the English.

CAPTURE OF VINCENNES.

With the opening scenes of the Revolutionary War came another contest for supremacy in the northwest country, this time between the Americans and the British. In August 1778 Post Vincennes was surprised and captured by the Americans under Captain Leonard Helm, who had been sent there by Colonel George Rogers Clark from Ft. Kaskaskia, in Illinois. Helm, in the following December, was compelled to surrender the Post to the British, who in turn, within three months, were again driven out by Clark. From that time until the close of the Revolution Colonel Clark remained in possession. With the close of the Revolutionary War, the settlers began to emigrate into the Northwest Territory in great numbers. These attracted by the rich, productive soil, came chiefly from Kentucky, Virginia and the Carolinas. Thus this region became peopled with brave, hardy, thrifty Americans, the descendents of whom compose the intelligent citizenship of Indiana's great commonwealth today.

ORGANIZATION OF INDIANA AS A STATE.

Immediately after the Revolution, the laws for the Northwest Territory were arbitrarity made and executed by Col. George Rogers Clark, who was still in possession. The territory then included the present limits of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, and as Clark was from Virginia, the territory was claimed by that State by right of conquest. However, with the adoption of the National Constitution, Virginia was induced to cede all her rights and claims to the territory to the general government.

Congress then passed, for the government of the Northwest Territory, the Ordinance of 1787 and appointed Gen. Arthur St. Clair as Governor, with the seat of government at Marietta, Ohio. The ordinance provided that not more than five States should be formed thereof. It prohibited slavery, and declared that, "religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government, and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

In 1810 the census of Indiana Territory, now reduced to the present territorial limits of the State, showed a population of 24,520. The census of 1815 gave it a population of 63,897, three thousand eight hundred ninety-seven more than the ordinance required to make it eligible for admission as a State. In December of the same year the Territorial Legislature addressed a memorial to Congress asking admission, which was granted in April of the following year (1816). In June, 1816, the Constitutional Convention met at Corydon, under the old historic elm at that place, and framed the organic law under which the new State should operate. Under this law the State was immediately organized and the various State officers elected. Jonathan Jennings was elected as the first State Governor, and Corydon was made the first State capital.

From this time forward the progress of the State along all lines was very rapid. The forests were cleared away to make room for fruitful fields and homes; swamps were drained, roads were built, towns and cities sprang up, and finally came the railroads and manufactories. The school system of the State, the best ever devised, was well administered, consequently the cause of education flourished, and has borne fruit in an enlightened, self-respecting, progressive and patriotic citizenship.

The State played a very prominent part in the war for the preservation of the Union, from 1861 to 1865. She marched her soldiers to the sanguinary fields in the South by the tens of thousands, and Oliver P. Morton, the great War Governor, stood close to President Lincoln as a friend, advisor and co-worker through all the perilous years of the conflict, and history now recognizes him as one of the collosal figures of the times.

The history of Indiana up to the present time is such as to warrant a just pride in the heart of every loyal citizen, while the future is pregnant with opportunities for still greater achievements along all lines of material, moral and intellectual growth and endeavor.

Mabel Whisner, Clerk; salary, $480.
Laura M. Peterson, Clerk; salary, $420.
Moffett M. Richards, Stenographer; salary, $660.
Perry N. Hiser, State Agent.

The Governor is made President of this Board by statutory provision. He appoints the other six members for terms of three years. The Board elects the Secretary, who has his office in the State House, and draws a salary of $2,400 per annum, besides receiving necessary traveling expenses. Other members of the Board receive traveling expenses but no salaries.

Three agents, besides the State Agent, are kept employed by the Board, one at $75 per month, one at $65 and one at $55, with traveling expenses. The State Agent gets $75 per month and traveling expenses.

The Board has general supervision over the State charitable, benevolent and correctional institutions, of which there are thirteen, not counting the Epileptic Village and Southeastern Hospital for the Insane provided for by the Legislature of 1905.

STATE BOARD OF PARDONS.

	Term Expires.
Edgar Howard O'Neall, Crawfordsville	April 9, 1909
John J. Gillette, Lagrange	January 1, 1906
L. G. Riggin, Attica	January 1, 1907

The members of this Board are appointed by the Governor, for a term of four years. They receive as compensation $300 per annum each and traveling expenses. The Board elects the Clerk, who receives $900 per annum. Meetings are held in the city of Indianapolis quarterly. It is the duty of the Board to pass upon all applications for pardon or commutation of sentences of convicted criminals, and make recommendations thereon to the Governor.

STATE BOARD OF TRUANCY.

Amos W. Butler, President, Indianapolis.
Charles N. Kendall, Secretary, Indianapolis.

In addition to the above, the membership of the State Board of Truancy is made up of the County Superintendents of Schools.

Truant officers are required to make annual reports to the State Board of Truancy.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

J. Frank Hanly, Governor, Indianapolis.
Fassett A. Cotton, State Supt. of Public Instruction, Indianapolis
Wm. W. Parsons, Pres. State Normal School, Terre Haute.

Wm. L. Bryan, Pres. Indiana University, Bloomington.
Wm. E. Stone, Pres. Purdue University, Lafayette.

J. N. Study, Supt. Fort Wayne Schools, Fort Wayne.
E. E. Roby, Supt. Howard County Schools, Kokomo.

Fassett A. Cotton, President.
Wm. W. Parsons, Secretary.

The Governor of the State, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the President of Purdue University, the President of the State University, the President of the State Normal School and the Superintendent of common schools of each of the three largest cities of the State are made members of the State Board of Education by statutory provision, and remain members as long as they hold the designated positions. In addition, the Governor appoints three other members, one of whom must be a County Superintendent. The terms of these last three are three years each.

The members of the Board, other than the Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, receive for their compensation, while actually engaged in the duties of their office, $5.00 per day and 5 cents per mile necessarily traveled.

STATE BOARD OF SCHOOL BOOK COMMISSIONERS.

The State Board of Education is constituted a State Board of School Book Commissioners for the purpose of selecting or procuring the compilation of text-books for use in the common schools of the State. (See State Board of Education.)

STATE LIBRARY.

The State Board of Education is by statutory provision constituted the State Library Board, and is charged with the management and control of the State Library. The Board elects the State Librarian for a term of two years, and the Librarian selects his assistants, with the consent and approval of the Board.

State Librarian, W. E. Henry; annual salary, $1,800.

Reference Librarian, Jennie Elrod; annual salary, $1,100.

Cataloguer, Jennie Scott; annual salary, $1,100.

Assistant Cataloguer, Margaret E. Crim; annual salary, $900.

Assistant Cataloguer, Mamie Switz; annual salary, $720.

Assistant Cataloguer, Harriet Halderman; annual salary, $720.

Messenger, David L. Metsker; annual salary, $720.

Mr. Henry's term expires on April 1, 1907.

The State Library is chiefly a reference library, but under certain regulations and rules volumes may be borrowed and taken to their homes by citizens of the State.

PUBLIC LIBRARY COMMISSION.

	Term Expires.
Jacob P. Dunn, President, Indianapolis	April, 1909
W. W. Parsons, Terre Haute	April, 1907
Mrs. Elizabeth C. Earl, Connersville	April, 1908

Miss Georgia H. Reynolds, Librarian of Traveling Libraries; salary, $720.

Miss Elizabeth B. Noel, Stenographer and Assistant; salary, $600.

The members of the Commission are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years, and they serve without compensation. The Commission appoints their secretary and assistants and fixes the salaries.

The Public Library Commission has charge of the Traveling Libraries of the State, aids in establishing free circulating libraries in cities and towns, gives instruction concerning their care and management, and trains librarians to be placed in charge. The work of this Commission ranks high among the advanced educational forces of the State.

STATE BOARD OF LABOR COMMISSIONERS.

L. P. McCormack, Indianapolis.
B. Frank Schmid, Indianapolis.
Anna M. Kreber, Stenographer.

Term of office of Commissioners, four years. Terms of present incumbents expire May 1, 1907. Salary, $1,800 per annum each, and necessary traveling expenses. Salary of stenographer, $600. The Governor appoints the members of the Commission, by and with the consent of the Senate. The law stipulates that the members shall be at least 40 years of age, not members of the same political party, and that one shall have been an employe for wages for the ten years previous to the date of his appointment, and the other an employer of labor for the same length of time.

STATE BOARD OF FORESTRY.

F. C. Carson, President, Michigan City.
Samuel Burkholder, Crawfordsville.
Stanley Coulter, Lafayette.
L. M. Stultz, R. F. D. 30, Westfield.
W. H. Freeman, Secretary and ex officio State Forester, Indianapolis.
Ella Grow, Clerk.

The five members of the State Board of Forestry are appointed by the Governor, subject to the following conditions, fixed by statute: One member must be selected from the membership of the Hardwood Lumber Dealers' Association of Indiana, one from the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, one from the faculty of Purdue University, one must be a person actively engaged in farming, and one a person having special knowledge of the theory and art of forest preservation and timber culture, and technical knowledge of the topography of the State. This last designated member is then to be Secretary of the Commission, and ex officio State Forester. He receives a salary of $1,800 per year and necessary traveling expenses, not to exceed $1,000 per year. The clerk receives $600. The other four members of the Commission receive $100 per year each. Term of office, four years. Terms of all present members expire May 18, 1909.

The State Board of Forestry is required to look after the forestry interests of the State, having in mind not only a future supply of timber for commercial and other purposes, but the effects upon climate and rainfall of the denudation of the land of trees. Their duties are to promote tree planting, and to enlighten the people upon the benefits of such a policy. They have charge of the State Forest Reservation and Forestry Experimental Station, a tract of 2,000 acres of land owned by the State at Henryville, in Clark County.

J. N. Hurty, M. D., Phar. D., Secretary, Indianapolis.	March 6, 1907

J. L. Anderson, Chief Clerk of Vital Statistics.

The members of this Board are appointed as follows: Four of the members are appointed by a "board of appointment," consisting of the Governor, the Secretary of State and the Auditor of State, and these four then elect a Secretary, who by virtue of such election becomes the fifth member of the Board. The term of office of the members is four years. The Secretary receives a salary of $3,000 per year, and the other members traveling and other necessary expenses, and $10 each for each meeting of the Board attended. The Chief Clerk of Vital Statistics receives $1,000 per year.

Meetings of the Board are required to be held at least once in each quarter in the city of Indianapolis.

STATE LABORATORY OF HYGIENE.

Dr. Victor Keene, Indianapolis, Superintendent.
Prof. H. R. Barnard, Indianapolis, Chemist.
H. E. Bishop, Indianapolis, Assistant Chemist.
Helen Knabe, M. D., Indianapolis, Assistant Pathologist.

The Superintendent and Chemist, and any other employes that may be needed, are appointed by the State Board of Health. The Superintendent is required to be skilled in bacteriology and pathology, and his salary is $2,000. The salary of the Chemist is $1,500 and the Assistant Chemist $780.

The State Laboratory of Hygiene is located at Indianapolis. Its purpose is for the analyses of foods and drugs and to enforce the pure food and drug laws and health laws of the State. No fees are charged for analyses or other services performed in the interests of the public health.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC PRINTING.

J. Frank Hanly, Governor.
Daniel E. Storms, Secretary of State.
Warren Bigler, Auditor of State.
George W. Self, Reporter of Supreme Court.

Harry Slough, Clerk.

The Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of State and Reporter of the Supreme Court are made members of the Bureau of Public Printing by statutory provision. The Clerk is chosen by the Board and must be a practical printer. His salary is $1,500. Term of office, two years.

Edna Robinson, Stenographer, Lafayette.

The Chief Inspector is appointed by the Governor for a term of four years, and receives a salary of $1,800 and traveling expenses. The Chief Inspector, by and with the consent of the Governor, appoints the Deputies. The Chief Deputy receives $1,500 salary and the deputies $1,000 each, with traveling expenses in each instance.

STATE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' MONUMENT.

Board of Control.

Term Expires.

G. V. Menzies, Vice-President, Mount Vernon....November, 1906

J. W. Headington, Secy. and Treas., Portland...November, 1907

(Vacancy.)

George W. Parker, Superintendent.

Simeon Ham, Electrical Engineer.

The State Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument occupies the center of the "Circle" at Indianapolis, and is considered one of the most beautiful and artistic monuments of its kind in existence. It was constructed at a cost, in round figures, of $600,000. Bruno Schmitz, of Berlin, Germany, was the architect, and Rudolph Schwarz, originally of Berlin, but now residing at Indianapolis, the sculptor.

An electrical elevator is kept in operation, which carries visitors to the top of the monument, affording them a charming view of the city and surrounding country. A small fee is charged, and in that way $5,831.55 was earned in the year 1904. About $10,000 per year, in addition to the earnings just mentioned, are required to meet the expense of operation, maintenance and care. The State supplies the deficit.

The members of the Board of Control are appointed by the Governor, for a term of three years. The Superintendent and other employes are selected by the Board. Members of the Board serve without pay. The Superintendent receives $1,100 per year. There are four watchmen, who receive $600 per year each, and two janitors, who receive $480 each.

STATE BOARD OF TAX COMMISSIONERS.

	Term Expires.

The Treasurer receives a salary of $500 per year and the Secretary $1,800, while the other officers and members receive expenses while in attendance at the annual meetings only. The annual meetings are held at the State House, Indianapolis, in January.

The State Board of Agriculture is a body corporate under the laws of Indiana, by legislative enactment. It owns the State Fair Grounds at Indianapolis, and conducts annual State Fairs, receiving annually a legislative appropriation of $10,000 to be used in the payment of premiums. The Board is also obligated to promote the agricultural interests of the State by advice and consultation. The personal and real property of the Board, and all notes, bonds, mortgages or other evidences of indebtedness, are exempt from taxation.

Members of the Board are appointed by the Governor. Term, four years. Board meets on second Tuesday of July and January of each year. Members receive for their compensation $5.00 per day each, and actual necessary traveling expenses while in attendance upon business of the Board. Such compensation and expenses must be paid out of fees collected, as State makes no appropriation.

COMMISSION SOUTHEASTERN HOSPITAL FOR INSANE.

George A. H. Shideler, Marion.
John W. McCardle, New Richmond.
Eph Inman, Washington.
Duane D. Jacobs, Lafayette.

The Governor is also a member of the Board ex officio. Governor Hanly appointed the other four members of the Board in May, 1905, in accordance with an act of the Legislature. Except the Governor, the members serve for a period of three years and receive for their compensation $5 per day each while actually employed on business of the commission. Traveling and other necessary expenses are also paid. The Board is required to select a location for and construct an additional hospital for the insane. The hospital is required to be located in one of the southeastern counties of the State.

MORTON MONUMENT COMMISSION.

E. B. Martindale, Indianapolis.
Harry C. Adams, Indianapolis.
Joseph I. Irwin, Columbus.
Warren R. King, Greenfield.
I. H. C. Royse, Terre Haute.
Dr. D. R. Lucas, Secretary.

This Commission was appointed by Governor Hanly in accordance with an act of the Legislature of 1905. The Commission is to secure the erection in a conspicuous place in the State House grounds at Indianapolis of an heroic statue of Oliver Perry Morton, the great war Governor of Indiana. The sum of $35,000 was appropriated for the purpose. Members of the Commission serve four years, without compensation other than expenses.

EPILEPTIC VILLAGE COMMISSION.

Dr. L. L. Whitesides, Franklin.
Dr. Stephen I. Brown, Knox.
Ezra Mattingly, Washington.

The Commission was appointed by Governor Hanly in May, 1905, agreeable to an act of the Legislature providing for the establishment of an Indiana Epileptic Village. The duties of the Commission are to decide upon a location, and purchase not less than 1,000 acres of land, upon which to establish a village for epileptics. Their work must be completed within one year, and for compensation they each receive $5 per day and expenses while actually engaged in the work of the Commission.

After land for the Epileptic Village has been purchased the Governor is required to appoint a board of three trustees, to whom will be entrusted the government and control of the village. The first appointees serve one for one year, one for two and one for three years, and after that each appointee for three years. Their salaries will be $400 per year each. The Board of Trustees will select a superintendent and other necessary employes and fix their salaries.

COMMISSION TO SEPARATE INDIANA INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS FROM WOMANS PRISON.

J. Frank Hanly, Governor, Chairman.
Eudorus M. Johnson, Secretary, Indianapolis.
Eddy M. Campbell, Treasurer, Indianapolis.
August M. Kuhn, Indianapolis.
William G. Oliver, Franklin.

The Governor is made chairman of this Commission by the law creating it. The other four members are his appointees. They serve until the work appointed them has been completed, and receive for compensation $5 per day and traveling expenses while actually employed with the duties of the Commission.

The law creating the Commission, and assigning it the duty of separating the Girls Industrial School from the Womans Prison, was passed by the Legislature of 1903, but the sum of money appropriated, $150,000, was found inadequate for the purchase of grounds and erection of buildings, and all action was deferred until the meeting of the Sixty-fourth General Assembly in 1905, when the appropriation was increased to $235,000. Work of accomplishing the separation of the institutions will now be pushed forward.

The terms of the law are that no less than eighty acres of ground shall be purchased, widely apart and separate from the Womans Prison, but within ten miles of Indianapolis, and suitable buildings erected thereon for the Industrial School.

When this is done, and the buildings are ready for occupancy, the Governor will appoint a separate Board of Managers for the Girls Industrial School. The Board will be composed of three women, one to be appointed for one year, one for two and one for three. At the expiration of their terms their successors will be appointed for three years each. Their compensation will be $300 per year each, and traveling expenses. The Board will employ a superintendent and all assistants and fix their salaries.

TUBERCULOSIS VILLAGE COMMISSION.

Senator Alex. G. Cavins, Terre Haute.
Senator Carl E. Wood, Seymour.
Representative R. N. Elliott, Connersville.
Representative L. F. Gage, Rockport.
Dr. Theodore Potter, Indianapolis.

This Commission was appointed by Governor Hanly in May, 1905, in accordance with terms of a Senate joint resolution passed in March of the same year. The Commission is required to investigate the need of a hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis in this State. The preamble of the resolution recites that the consumptive deaths in Indiana in 1904 numbered 1,948 males and 2,791 females; that over 3,000 homes were invaded by the disease, leaving in its wake over 1,000 widows and over 1,800 orphans under 12 years of age. The members of the Commission serve until after the next session of the Legislature and receive actual expenses only.

Indiana Educational Institutions.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY- BLOOMINGTON.

Board of Trustees.

	Term Expires.
Isaac Jenkinson, Richmond	July, 1906
Theodore F. Rose, Muncie	July, 1906
Edwin Corr, Bloomington	July, 1906
Nat U. Hill, Bloomington	July, 1908
Joseph H. Shea, Seymour	July, 1907
Benjamin F. Shively, South Bend	July, 1908
Robert I. Hamilton, Vincennes	July, 1908
James W. Fesler, Indianapolis	July, 1908

William L. Bryan, President, Bloomington.

The Trustees are chosen for terms of three years, and receive for compensation $6 per day each while in the actual service of the University. The manner of their selection is as follows: Three are elected by the alumni of the University, the expiration of their terms being so timed that one is elected at the annual commencement each year in June. The other five Trustees are elected by the State Board of Education. Fesler, Corr and Shea are the three members of the present Board elected by the alumni.

The Trustees elect the President of the University, and all assistants, employes and teachers, and fix their salaries. The salary of the President is $5,000.

Indiana University ranks high among the best educational institutions of the country.

The Trustees are required by law to provide for the tuition, free of charge, of two students from each county in the State, to be selected by the Board of County Commissioners.

There is a normal department for instruction in the theory and practice of teaching, which is free of charge to young persons, male and female, residents of the State, who desire to qualify themselves as teachers in the common schools.

The University was founded in 1820, and made co-educational in 1868.

William J. Jones, Jr., M. S., A. C., Assistant Chemist.

M. L. Fisher, B. S., Assistant Agriculturist.

R. M. Hamer, Stockman.

The Governor appoints six of the nine Trustees of Purdue University, two are selected by the State Board of Agriculture and one by the State Board of Horticulture. Term of office, six years. Compensation, $3.50 per day while attending meetings. Salary of the President, $5,000 per annum. The compensation of the President and all other officers, professors and employes are fixed by the Board of Trustees.

The University was named in honor of John Purdue, who, at the time of its establishment, in 1865, donated for its use $150,000 in cash and 100 acres of land. By an act of Congress in 1887, called the Hatch Act, the United States Government established at the institution the Agricultural Experiment Station.

The University offers courses in Agriculture, Applied Sciences, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, and Pharmacy.

Each county in the State is entitled to free tuition for two students at Purdue. These students are to be selected by the County Commissioners, and get not only tuition free, but are not chargeable for room, light, heat, water, janitor or matriculation fees.

The Indiana Medical College at Indianapolis is also a part, and under the control of, Purdue University.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL—TERRE HAUTE.

Board of Trustees.

	Term Expires.
Wm. H. Armstrong, Indianapolis	January 6, 1908
J. H. Tomlin, Shelbyville	January 20, 1906
Joshua Jump, Terre Haute	January 6, 1908
B. F. Louthain, Logansport	January 20, 1906

Wm. W. Parsons, President, Terre Haute.

Trustees are appointed by the Governor. Term, four years; compensation, $5 per day each for actual services rendered, and necessary traveling expenses. President's salary, $5,000. The Trustees fix compensation of the President and all officers, professors and employes.

The object of the State Normal is the preparation and training of teachers for teaching in the common schools of Indiana.

Tuition is free on the four following conditions: First, 16 years of age if female, and 18 if male; second, good health; third, good moral character; fourth, a written pledge on the part of the student that he, or she, will, so far as may be practicable, teach in the common schools of Indiana a period equal to twice the time spent as a pupil in the Normal School.

INDIANA ACADEMY OF SCIENCE.

The Indiana Academy of Science is a voluntary association founded in 1885, and maintained for scientific study and research, and the diffusion of knowledge concerning the various departments of science. It is not controlled or supported by the State, but the Legislature provides an annual appropriation of $600 for publishing the proceedings and papers of the association. Fifteen hundred to three thousand copies of each of the reports are published, most of which are distributed under the direction of the State Librarian to the various libraries of the State, and to other institutions, societies or persons applying for them. Complete files are kept at the State Library, free of access to the public.

Meetings of the society are held in May and December of each year, the December meeting occurring at the State House, Indianapolis, and the May meeting at some other town or city, subject to selection.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

Every person who has control of a child between the ages of seven and fourteen years is compelled by law to send such child to school.

In the enforcement of this law 111 truant officers are employed in the State, at an annual salary expense of $22,328. In the school year 1903-4 they brought 22,597 children into school. During the same period the State incurred an expense of $17,837 for clothing and books for poor children.

The New Harmony Movement.

Two remarkable and widely differing experiments in social reconstruction constituted the "New Harmony Movement," and they took place at the little town of New Harmony, located in Posey County, Indiana, about fifty miles north of the confluence of the Wabash and Ohio rivers.

The first of the experiments was by George Rapp, a native of Wurtemberg, Germany. He conceived the idea of founding a colony, or community, and governing it according to the New Testament as he understood and interpreted it. He thought the people could be led to live such righteous and holy lives that sin would eventually be banished from the world, and Christ would come again and dwell among his people. But on account of governmental opposition, Rapp left Germany and came to America to carry out his ideas. He arrived in 1803, and at first established his colony in Pennsylvania, but being dissatisfied there came to Indiana, and in the year 1815 purchased 30,000 acres of land in Posey County. With his faithful band of followers he established New Harmony, and operating on the community plan, everything being held in common, and all individuals working for the common good, thousands of acres of forest lands were cleared, and farming, fruit growing and stock raising were carried on on a gigantic scale, and for a time successfully and profitably. The fame of New Harmony spread everywhere, but so long as human nature remains as it is, such experiments will necessarily be short lived. The heyday of prosperity soon passed, the zeal of the Rappites for their cherished ideals cooled; selfishness and individual ambitions got in their work, and contentions, discord and disintegration followed in their natural order and sequence.

Many of the queer old houses built by the Rappites still remain. The "front doors" invariably open toward the back of the lots, and in the old cemetery, surrounded by a five-foot brick wall, no gravestones or monuments appear. Such things, according to the Rappites, were mere frivolities and vanities, and therefore wrong. They built a great church, in the shape of a Greek cross, of which a London traveler wrote eighty-six years ago:

"I can scarcely imagine myself to be in the wilds of Indiana, on the borders of the Wabash, while passing through its long and resounding aisles, and surveying its stately colonnades."

In 1824 the Rappites sold out to Robert Owen, another noted dreamer, who came from Scotland, to carry out his idea of unifying capital and labor. He was also a communist, but not a religionist. He had established and successfully conducted a community—a model manufacturing town, at Lanark, Scotland. His idea was to substitute co-operation for competition, and to reconstruct society upon the communistic plan. To try his theories on a larger scale he came to America, and, as stated, bought the New Harmony settlement from the Rappites. Owen had with him William Maclure, the father of American geology, and his experiment attracted a number of other men of such eminent talent and learning that, to quote Col. Lockwood, "New Harmony became the greatest scientific center in America, and the first important scientific outpost in the West. It became the headquarters of the United States Geological Survey, with one of its students, David Dale Owen, in charge; it was the site of a museum unexcelled on the continent."

For many years New Harmony was the Mecca for men of science and learning, as well as for the curious and adventurous. Its fame was world-wide. Robert Owen soon retired to Scotland, but left his four sons, Robert Dale Owen, William Owen, David Dale Owen and Richard Owen, in charge. All became eminent in the affairs of State and Nation. Robert Dale Owen served as a member of the Indiana Legislature, and represented the State in Congress. He was the legislative father of the Smithsonian Institution, and a letter he wrote at the critical moment is said to have borne great influence in deciding President Lincoln to issue the Emancipation Proclamation. He was also a writer and lecturer of much note.

It is unnecessary to state that the second New Harmony experiment, like the first, also failed, at least so far as the direct purposes of its author were concerned. But the influences which grew out of it were momentous, and are still alive. We quote a few paragraphs from a magazine article contributed by Col. George B. Lockwood, who is also author of the best book on the New Harmony movement yet published:

"No undertaking is a failure which leaves mankind better and wiser because of it, and judged by this standard the New Harmony venture was a wonderful success. There has not been another trial of communistic association so auspiciously undertaken, or so thoroughly carried to a conclusion, as that of Robert Owen at New Harmony. Brook Farm has occupied a larger place in literature, but as a serious effort at solving the social problems of its time it did not approach New Harmony in importance.

"But of more immediate importance to us, especially as Indianans, is the fact that the deathbed of Robert Owen's 'social system' became the birthplace of several distinct movements which have assumed great proportions since the story of the New Harmony communisms became a half forgotten chapter in the history of social experiments.

"There the doctrine of universal elementary education at public expense, without regard to sex or sect, was first proclaimed in the West, and through the labor of Robert Dale Owen, more than any other one man, this conception of the State's duty has found expression in a common school system that is the glory of the republic.

"Through William Maclure, Robert Owen and Joseph Neef, Pestalozzi's pupil and author of the first American work on the science of education, the Pestalozzian system of education, now everywhere predominant, was first successfully transplanted to the Western world.

"William Maclure's 'manual training school' at New Harmony was the first distinctive trade school and the second industrial school in point of time in the United States; it was the first industrial school of any type to be made a part of a free public school system.

"The infant school established by Robert Owen at New Harmony, and conducted throughout the lifetime of the experiment, was the first kindergarten of any type in the United States, and marked the first use of the kindergarten as a part of the public school system.

"It was in the schools at New Harmony that the theory of equal educational privileges for the sexes was first put into practice. And at New Harmony was the first free public school system in a land in which today the blessings of an education 'free as the living waters' (as Robert Dale Owen so earnestly hoped it might become), forces itself upon the American child, if need be, by due process of law; there was the first real public school system west of the Appalachians, the most humane and enlightened system of school government to be found anywhere, for it was not equaled even in the schools of the tender-hearted Pestalozzi himself; the most enthusiastic and determined advocacy and support of 'free, equal and universal schools' that history records; the most ambitious and pretentious educational experiment the world has yet witnessed, and with the exception of Pestalozzi's earlier effort, the most courageous and unselfish educational experiment which the world has yet witnessed.

"Through Robert Dale Owen New Harmony impressed upon American law the modern conception of the legal rights of women, and in New Harmony was founded by Frances Wright, nearly eighty years ago, the first woman's literary club in the United States. Through William Maclure New Harmony gave to the West a system of mechanics' libraries from which dates the beginning of general culture in nearly a hundred and fifty Indiana communities.

"Through Josiah Warren New Harmony originated the philosophy of anarchy, a rebound from communism, and gave to the world the perfecting printing press. And it is claimed that in the system of 'labor notes' invented by Josiah Warren at New Harmony, was the germ of the great co-operative societies of Great Britain, which constitute the most successful labor movement of the nineteenth century. Even the religious latitudinarianism of the New Harmony communists, so bitterly denounced in its own day, has served as a leaven of liberality in religious thought itself, until the narrow type of religion which the Owenites so steadfastly opposed has in large measure disappeared.

"The last of those who lived and labored in New Harmony's golden age have long since ceased to dream of an earthly New Jerusalem, but the great movements to which they gave origin and direction will sweep onward in an ever widening current"

Eli W. Menaugh, Treasurer, Salem	February 25, 1906

Richard M. Smock, Commandant, Lafayette.

D. B. Kehler, Adjutant.

Terms of office for Trustees, Commandant and Adjutant, three years. Trustees are appointed by the Governor. Commandant and Adjutant are selected by the Trustees, but commissioned by the Governor. Commandant and Adjutant receive salaries of $1,200 and $900, respectively. Trustees receive traveling and necessary expenses only. Both Trustees and officers must be honorably discharged soldiers or sailors of the Civil War. No more than three of the Trustees must belong to the same political party.

Soldiers and sailors of the Civil War, and their widows, and the wives of disabled or destitute soldiers and sailors, also the widows and wives of disabled or destitute soldiers or sailors of the Spanish-American War, and the Philippine Insurrection, are eligible to admission to the Home.

For the current expenses of the Home the State makes an annual appropriation equal to $12.50 per month for each inmate, officer and employe residing there.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' ORPHANS' HOME.

(Located at Knightstown.)

Board of Trustees.

	Term Expires.
George W. Duncan, President, Greenfield	March 23, 1909
Julia S. Conklin, Secretary, Westfield	March 23, 1907
Hugh Dougherty, Treasurer, Indianapolis	March 23, 1909

A. H. Graham, Superintendent, Knightstown.

The Trustees are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years. The law provides that one member shall be a woman, either the wife, widow or daughter of a Union soldier. The male members must be ex-Union soldiers, belonging to different political parties. Compensation of the Trustees, $500 per year each, with no additional allowance for expenses.

The Superintendent and Steward are chosen by the Board of Trustees for a term of three years, and receive salaries of $1,500 and $900 respectively. They must also be ex-Union soldiers.

The Home is maintained for the care and education of orphan children of Union soldiers and sailors. Such children are clothed.

fed and educated at the Home until they are 16 years of age, and if then for any reason unable to maintain themselves, they may remain two years longer. The State appropriates for the current expenses a sum equal to $15 per month for each officer, employe and pupil.

THE NATIONAL SOLDIERS' HOME AT MARION, IND.

While the National Soldiers' Home at Marion is not a State institution, it is, nevertheless, an object of pride and interest to the people of Indiana. The Home was erected, and is maintained by the United States Government for the benefit of ex-Union soldiers and sailors who claim its care. Its present population is a little in excess of twenty-three hundred. Similar homes are maintained in other states, so that no old soldier who finds it necessary to seek the bounty of the Government is ever turned away.

The principal officers in charge of the Home at Marion, with their annual salaries, are as follows:

George W. Steele, Governor; salary, $3,000.

John Q. Adams, Treasurer; salary, $2,000.

Harry Miller, Chief Surgeon; salary, $2,400.

James W. Sanderson, Quartermaster; salary, $1,800.

In addition to the salaries named, all the officers get furnished homes, or "quarters," free, and their provisions for just 10 per cent. more than the Government pays. The Governor also receives $600 per year additional for entertaining the National Board of Managers, who visit the institution at least once each year, and sometimes oftener. The National Board of Managers, as its name indicates, is a national body, having control over all the national soldiers homes in the country. The officers of the homes are appointed by this Board, and hold their places during good behavior, or at the pleasure of the Board.

Albert E. Carroll, Superintendent, Fort Wayne.

The Governor appoints the Trustees for terms of four years. Salary, $300 per year each, and no additional allowance for expenses. The law requires that one member be a woman. The two male members must belong to different political parties. The Trustees appoint the Superintendent and all other officers and employes. Superintendent and Principal are appointed for three years each, and receive salaries of $1,500 and $750, respectively. The Matron receives $500.

The purpose of the institution is "to care for, support, train and instruct feeble-minded children, the term feeble-minded to include idiotic, epileptic and paralytic children."

Where the parents or guardians of such children are able, they are required to pay a small fee to the institution, otherwise the benefits are free.

INDIANA STATE PRISON.

(Located at Michigan City.)

BOARD OF CONTROL.

	Term Expires.
David A. Coulter, Frankfort	January 1, 1908
Charles H. Bundy, Marion	January 1, 1907
Patrick O'Brien, South Bend	January 1, 1906

James D. Reid, Warden, Michigan City.

Frank Sewell, Deputy Warden, Michigan City.

W. A. Garner, Clerk.

L. H. Streaker, Physician.

Members of the Board of Control are appointed by the Governor for terms of three years. They receive salaries of $500 per year each, and no allowance for expenses. The Warden and other employes are appointed by the Board. Salaries: Warden, $2,500; Deputy Warden, $1,200; Clerk, $1,000; Physician, $500. The Warden is appointed for a term of four years.

The treatment of Indiana convicts is humane and kindly. Liberal reductions are made on sentences for good behavior, and when a prisoner is discharged after serving his time, he is given a new suit of clothes and $10 in money, and a railroad ticket to any point in the State to which he desires to go, provided it is no farther from the prison than the point from which he was sentenced. If discharged between the first of November and the first of April he is given an overcoat also.

The Indiana State Prison is for the incarceration of male persons convicted by any of the courts of the State of treason, or murder in the first or second degree, and of all persons convicted of any felony who at the time of conviction are thirty years of age and over. Persons over sixteen and under thirty years of age who may be convicted of any felony or crime less than treason or murder, are sent to the Reformatory at Jeffersonville to serve whatever sentence may be imposed.

INDIANA REFORMATORY.

(Located at Jeffersonville.)

BOARD OF MANAGERS.

	Term Expires.
Doctor J. Terhune, Linton	March 28, 1908
Wm. H. Hart, Indianapolis	March 22, 1909
Leonidas P. Newby, Knightstown	March 22, 1907
Thos. B. Orr, Anderson	March 22, 1906

W. H. Whittaker, General Superintendent, Jeffersonville.

M. M. Barnard, Assistant Superintendent.

F. H. Pageler, Clerk.

J. W. Comfort, State Agent.

Members of the Board of Managers are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years. They receive necessary traveling and other expenses, but no other compensation. The Board selects the General Superintendent, and fixes his salary. The General Superintendent receives $2,500 per year. The General Superintendent selects all other employes. The Assistant Superintendent receives $2,000; the Clerk, $1,800, and the State Agent, $1,500. The Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent are furnished house and subsistence in addition to their salaries.

The Indiana Reformatory is used for the incarceration of male persons between the ages of sixteen and thirty years, who may be convicted of any felony below the grade of treason, or murder in the first or second degree. Theoretically the purpose of their imprisonment is reform rather than punishment. Under the present "indeterminate sentence" law, the court orders that the person found guilty of a felony under conditions as explained, be confined in the Reformatory for a term not less than the minimum time prescribed by the statutes as a punishment for such offense, and not more than the maximum time prescribed by such statutes therefor. Under the prescribed rules of the Reformatory, the prisoner may be discharged after the minimum time has been served, or he may be kept for the maximum time, or he may be released on parole. Under parole his liberty is forfeited by any acts of misconduct, and he is returned to the Reformatory to serve his full term.

The Legislature of 1905 passed a law providing for the establishment of a school of industrial training for inmates of the Reformatory.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS AND WOMAN'S PRISON.

(Located at Indianapolis.)

BOARD OF MANAGERS.

	Term Expires.
Emma Lee Elam, Indianapolis	March 1, 1907
Sarah A. Lancaster, Lafayette	March 1, 1907
Ella B. McCoy, Indianapolis	March 1, 1909

Emily E. Rhodes, Superintendent, Indianapolis.

Members of the Board of Managers are appointed by the Governor, and serve four years, their compensation being $160 per year each, and no allowance for expenses. The Board selects the Superintendent and other officers and employes, and fixes their salaries. The Superintendent's salary is $1,200.

The law stipulates that the Board of Managers, the Superintendent and all other officers and employes shall be women.

The Industrial School for Girls is a reformatory institution to which girls under fifteen years of age may be committed for vagrancy, or incorrigible or vicious conduct.

The Woman's Prison is for the imprisonment, safe custody and reformation of women and girls convicted of criminal offenses.

The two institutions are at present maintained in the same buildings and under one management. The Legislature of 1903 passed a law requiring that the Industrial School for Girls should be separated from the Woman's Prison, and that buildings separate and widely apart from those now used by the Industrial School and Prison be constructed for the use of the former. An appropriation of $150,000 was made, and a commission appointed to carry out the provisions of the act, but the amount appropriated was found inadequate for the purchase of land and construction of buildings, and no steps were taken toward complying with the provisions of the act. But at the session of the Legislature of 1905 the appropriation was increased to $235,000, and the commission continued, so the work of separation will finally be accomplished. The Girls' Industrial School will then be established on the cottage plan, and will have separate control and management from the Womans Prison.

INDIANA REFORM SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

(Located at Plainfield.)

BOARD OF CONTROL.

	Term Expires.
W. C. Van Arsdel, Indianapolis	March 1, 1909
Joseph B. Homan, Danville	March 1, 1907
Wm. C. Ball, Terre Haute	March 1, 1907

E. E. York, Superintendent, Plainfield.

Members of the Board of Control are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years, and their compensation is $500 per year each, with no allowance for expenses. The Board selects the Superintendent and other subordinates, and fixes their salaries. The Superintendent's salary is $1,500 per year, with home and board furnished.

The Indiana Reform School for Boys is maintained to receive into its care and guardianship boys between the ages of seven and eighteen years, committed to its custody by the courts for any of the following reasons: (1) For incorrigible or vicious conduct, rendering control beyond the power of parent or guardian; (2) vagrancy, vicious conduct or moral depravity, where the parent or guardian is unable or unwilling to exercise control; (3) on complaint of township trustee where such child resides, or by the mother when the father is dead, or has abandoned his family, or is an habitual drunkard or does not provide sustenance and clothing, that such child is destitute of a suitable home and of adequate means of obtaining an honest living, or is in danger of being brought up to lead an idle or immoral life.

No commitment is for a shorter period than until the boy shall attain the age of 21 years.

NEW BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

In addition to the foregoing charitable, benevolent and correctional institutions supported by the State, the Legislature of 1905 passed laws providing for the establishment of an institution for the treatment and care of epileptics, and for an additional hospital for the insane.

POPULATION AND GROSS AND PER CAPITA COST OF MAINTENANCE OF THE STATE INSTITUTIONS FOR THE YEAR 1904.

NAME OF INSTITUTION.	Population.	Cost of Maintenance.	Per Capita Cost of Maintenance.
Central Hospital for Insane	1,788	$328,913	$183 99
Northern Hospital for Insane	835	143,307	171 65
Eastern Hospital for Insane	686	120,997	176 30
Southern Hospital for Insane	627	107,474	171 41
State Soldiers' Home	640	105,767	165 26
Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home	513	105,380	205 52
Institution for the Deaf and Dumb	315	73,447	233 20
Institution for the Blind	118	37,496	318 27
School for Feeble-Minded Youth	986	126,758	128 56
State Prison	795	118,628	149 15
Indiana Reformatory	976	144,390	147 99
Industrial School for Girls and Woman's Prison	255	40,184	156 91
Indiana Reform School for Boys	569	73,000	128 27
Total	9,103	$1,525,741	$167 60

The average per capita cost of the total number maintained in all the institutions was $167.60, divided as follows: For administration, $59.87; for clothing, $6.59; for repairs, $8.63; for subsistence, $47.40; for office, domestic and outdoor departments, $45.11.

The expenses for new buildings and extraordinary repairs are not included in amounts and averages in the foregoing table. Such expenses for 1904 amounted to $223,940; adding this to the cost of maintenance makes a grand total of expense for the State's institutions of $1,749,681. But there were $135,658 of receipts and earnings, which, being deducted, leaves a net cost to the State of $1,614,023.

In addition to the foregoing, there are 1,591 children in Orphans' Homes who are wards of the State, being under the direct charge of the Board of State Charities; 2,832 other children have been placed in private families by the Board and are subject to oversight and visitation by the agents of the Board.

TOWNSHIP POOR.

In 1904 the Township Trustees, as overseers of the poor, aided 46,009 persons to the amount of $281,899.87. This seems like a large number of persons to be helped, and an enormous amount of money expended, but it is a great improvement over the first few years following the enactment of the poor relief law in 1895. In that year the township poor relief and medical aid amounted to $630,169, or $348,269 more than in 1904. The number of persons aided in 1897 was 82,235, as against 46,009 in 1904. The improvement is due to better administration of the law and the growth of the State charitable institutions, which now care for a large percentage of the State's defectives and helpless wards. And still there is room for improvement. However, 5,997 more persons were aided in 1904 than in 1903, and the expenditure for such aid was $34,154 greater in 1904 than in 1903.

COUNTY POOR ASYLUMS.

Each county in the State maintains a poor asylum, and in addition Marion County has an insane asylum.

According to the last official report, it costs the ninety-two counties of the State $379,669 annually to maintain these institutions. There were in addition $60,016 for extraordinary repairs and new buildings, making a total cost of $439,695. However, there were receipts and earnings of $74,833, leaving a net cost of $364,862.

The total number of inmates in the 93 county asylums of the State, according to the last report, was 3,144. Of these, 2,071 were males and 1,073 females.

COUNTY JAILS AND CRIMINALITY.

There were admitted to the county jails of the State in 1904 a total of 33,810 persons, an increase of 3,550 over the year before. Of the total jail admissions in 1904, as shown, 31,552 were men and 2,258 were women.

There were 4,115 tramps, for whose incarceration fees and board amounting to $7,039.71 were charged, which charges were probably illegal, as the right of county sheriffs to house and feed tramps, when no charges are placed against them warranting arrest, is seriously questioned.

There were admitted for intoxication 12,267 men and 507 women, a total of 12,774, at a cost to the counties for fees and board of $37,720.

Over 50 per cent. of the whole number of persons admitted to the jails was for vagrancy and intoxication—being 16,889 out of 33,810. The expense to the counties in fees and board for these 16,889 vagrants and drunkards was $44,789.93.

A total of 949 persons were found to be in the jails of the State at the time of the jail census on October 31, 1904. Of these 870 were men and 79 women; 269 were there awaiting trial, 605. were serving sentences, 49 were there for miscellaneous causes, 20 were insane persons and 6 were tramps.

Term of office of Circuit Court Judges, six years. Compensation, $2,500 per annum, but in circuits containing a city of over 30,000 inhabitants, the County Commissioners may, upon petition of 20 or more citizens, increase the Judge's salary, but the increase must not raise the total salary beyond $3,000. Also, in circuits containing $25,000,000 of taxables or more, or 45,000 population or over, the salary of the Judge may be fixed at $80 for each million of taxables, or $25 for each one thousand of population.

Term of Prosecutor, two years. Compensation, $500 per annum, and fees.

It will be noted that while the Circuit Courts are numbered from 1 to 61, there is no 40 and no 59, but there are two 61's. Forty and 59 were dropped out through legislative changes in the circuits. The circumstances leading up to the duplication of 61 were peculiar. The Senate of 1905 passed a bill taking Fountain County from the 21st and made it a circuit by itself, and numbered it 61, overlooking the fact that a 61st Circuit had been established earlier in the session. The bill went to the House of Representatives, according to the usual form, and was passed, but with an amendment changing the number of the new circuit from Sixty-one to Sixty-two. Having amended the bill, it was then necessary to send it back for the Senate's concurrence in the amendment. But by the time it got back a majority of the Senators had changed their minds as to the desirability of creating the new circuit, and they voted to non-concur in the House amendment, hoping to defeat their own bill. But the House wanted it to become a law, so they sent it on down the line without the amendment, and receiving the Governor's signature it became a law. Until the duplication is remedied by a future Legislature the districts will be distinguished as the old and the new Sixty-first.

Officials and Eminent Citizens.

J. FRANK HANLY,

Governor of Indiana.

J. Frank Hanly, Governor of Indiana, was born April 4th, 1863, in a log cabin, in Champaign County, Illinois. His father, Elijah Hanly, a cooper by trade, was of Scotch-Irish extraction, a native of Hamilton County, Ohio, whose ancestors had come at an early date from Ireland. His mother was Ann Eliza Calton, a native of North Carolina. Their son, destined to become Governor of Indiana, was ambitious to secure an education, but was able to attend school for a few weeks at a time only, being engaged in the work of a common laborer on various farms in order that he might assist in the support of his parents. In 1879 he started out alone to Warren County, Indiana, walking most of the distance, as he had no money to pay his way. On arriving at Williamsport he secured employment sawing wood, and when the spring season opened he found employment on the farm. In the winter which followed he taught a six months' term of common school, and saved up money enough to take a six weeks' course at the Eastern Illinois Normal School, at Danville. He continued to teach school in winter and do any honorable work his hands found to do in the summer. In 1889 he was admitted to the Warren County bar, and began the practice of law at Williamsport. A year later he was nominated and elected to the State Senate, where he at once took front rank as a debator and forceful legislator. In 1894 he was nominated by the Republicans of the Ninth District for Congress, and was elected by a majority of more than 5,000. But the Legislature of 1895 gerrymandered him into a new congressional district, and he failed of renomination by a half vote. In the fall of 1896 he moved from Williamsport to Lafayette, Indiana, where he formed a partnership in the practice of law with Senator Will R. Wood. In the campaign of 1898 Mr. Hanly's services as a public speaker were in great demand and he made a thorough canvass of the State. Later when the General Assembly met he was a formidable candidate for United States Senator, and came within a few votes of winning the nomination over Senator Beveridge in the Republican caucus.

In August, 1903, Mr. Hanly decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, and entered upon the campaign with his usual vigor and earnestness. So great was his popularity that when the convention met on the 29th of April, 1904, it was only a question of what ballot would nominate him. The convention stampeded to his standard before the close of the first ballot, and his nomination was made unanimous. He was elected in November, 1904, by almost 85,000 majority, the largest ever given a gubernatorial candidate of either party in Indiana. He was inaugurated as Governor January 9th, 1905, and in his inaugural address he took strong grounds on matters of railway legislation and public morals. He has shown a determination to signalize his administration as one of law enforcement, and his efforts are meeting with the hearty approbation of all well-disposed and law-abiding citizens of the State.

HUGH TH. MILLER,
Lieutenant-Governor.
(Sketch prepared by Marshall E. Newhouse.)

Hugh Th. Miller, son of John G. Miller, Christian minister, and some time member of the faculty of Butler College, Indianapolis, was born on the farm of his father and grandfather, near Nineveh, Johnhson County, Indiana, March 21, 1867. His mother was Elizabeth Ann Carr, of Louisville, Kentucky. Having received his elementry and intermediate education at home, he was graduated (A. B.) at Butler College in 1888 (A. M., 1895). Studying later in Paris and Berlin, he became Professor of Romance Languages at Butler, resigning in 1899 to become assistant cashier of Irwin's Bank, Columbus, Indiana. He is also Secretary and Tresurer of the Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern Traction Company. He was married December 26, 1900, to Nettie Irwin Sweeney, daughter of Z. T. Sweeney, Commissioner of Fisheries and Game, and grand-daughter of Joseph I. Irwin, of Columbus.

He was elected as a Republican to represent Bartholomew County in the State Legislature in 1902, never having held public office before. After a lively contest before the Republican State Convention of 1904, in which he had some very able and highly popular gentlemen for competitors, he won the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, and in the fall of the same year, he, along with the rest of the ticket, was elected by an overwhelming majority.

As Lieutenant Governor Mr. Miller became presiding officer of the State Senate, and in this position during the session of 1905 he made a record of which any man might indulge a just pride. In addition to a formal resolution passed by unanimous vote of the Senate at the time of adjournment, expressing the high regards and thanks of the body, individual Senators, in public addresses, pronounced many flattering encomiums upon him, declaring that he had proven himself as able and fair a presiding officer as ever wielded the gavel in the Senate of Indiana. These compliments and expressions of appreciation came from Republican and Democratic members alike.

DANIEL E. STORMS,

Secretary of State.

Daniel E. Storms, Secretary of State of Indiana, was born on a farm near Stockwell, in Tippecanoe County, Indiana, January 30, 1866, being the son of Abner and Philetta Storms. He received his education in the common schools, Purdue University, United States Military Academy, West Point, and the University of Michigan, graduating from the Law Department of the latter institution in 1892 with the degree of LL. B. He at once began the practice of law at Lafayette, and soon afterward formed a partnership with Judge Robert P. Davidson, one of the ablest lawyers in the State. This partnership, which was an extremely pleasant one, continued three years, at the end of which time Mr. Storms formed a partnership, which is still in force with Charles E. Thompson. In 1896 he was elected County Attorney of Tippecanoe County, and retained the position until the first Monday in December, 1902. His splendid success up to this time, and his effective work locally and throughout the State for the party of his choice won for him such wide popularity that in the Republican convention of 1902 he was nominated unanimously for the office of Secretary of State. He was elected by a splendid majority and in 1904 was re-elected to serve a second term. He has popularized his administration by the painstaking and expeditious manner in which he has conducted the business of the office. He is a hard worker, sticking close to his duties, but always finds time to greet friends and patrons of the office cordially. He has also made his mark as a public speaker, and his services are constantly in demand in all parts of the State. His family consists of his wife and one son, Donald Campbell, and one daughter, Lillian Gladys.

WARREN BIGLER,

Auditor of State.

Warren Bigler, Auditor of State of Indiana, was born in Shelby County, Indiana, in 1851, being the son of Lewis and Melissa Brandenburg Bigler. Mr. Bigler's educational opportunities were limited mainly to the common schools of Shelby County. He attended the National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, a few months. But such opportunities as he did enjoy he improved to the utmost. Working by himself at home without any assistance whatever, he mastered much of the subject of higher mathematics. He owes the liberal success he has won in life to close application to the duties in hand, whether study over books in his school days, or attending to the details of business after reaching manhood. He early earned the reputation for thorough honesty and fairness in all things that has been his chief help in the battle for success that he has had to wage alone from boyhood. He is now known as one of Indiana's most solid and reliable citizens. For more than a fourth of a century Wabash, Indiana, has been his home. Mr. Bigler is a stanch Republican, and for many years has been identified with the local and State organizations of his party. He has served as secretary and chairman at different times of the county committee, and was district chairman from 1898 to 1902. He also served terms as secretary and vice chairman of the State committee and was a member of the executive and finance committees. Notwithstanding his long and valuable party service, he was never a candidate for office. Until he was appointed State Auditor on September 15, 1905, by Governor Hanly, to fill out the unexpired term of David E. Sherrick, resigned, he had never occupied public positions other than school trustee and trustee of the Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane. The former position he held eighteen years continuously, and the latter from 1902 to 1905. Mr. Bigler is an attorney by profession, but is also interested in the mortgage loan and real estate business—i. e., the buying and selling of real estate. He compiled a complete set of abstracts for his county, that has long been a standard local work.

That the affairs of the Auditor's office will be well administered while in Mr. Bigler's charge goes without saying.

NATHANIEL U. HILL,

Treasurer of State.

Nathaniel U. Hill, Treasurer of State, a successful citizen of Bloomington, was born in Clay County, Indiana, June 21, 1852. Was fourth son in a family of six children born to Abel S. and Almira Usher Hill, and was reared in Brazil, Indiana, where he received a liberal education in the public schools. At sixteen he attended the academy at Ladoga for two years under the management of Rev. Milton B. Hopkins. In 1870 he entered and finished his freshman year at State University, after which he attended Howard College, Kokomo, conducted by Rev. Hopkins. In 1872 he re-entered State University and graduated in 1875 in literary; in same year finished junior law, graduating in law in that institution in June, 1876. Practiced law for two years in Brazil, a partner of Judge Jas. A McNutt. In December, 1878, was married to Miss Anna M. Buskirk, daughter of Judge Geo. A. Buskirk, of Bloomington. Two sons bless this union. Nathaniel U. and Philip B., both living. Located in Bloomington he was three years director of the First National Bank. In 1881 he was elected Vice-President, eight years after was elected President, which position he held for thirteen years and until he resigned to assume the office of State Treasurer. He was elected for a second term as Treasurer in 1904, and the State's fiscal affairs have never been more ably conducted than under his administration. For thirty years has taken an active part in politics, always believing that any opposition could be overcome by intelligent and perfect organization. He was county chairman, district chairman, delegate to the National Convention at Minneapolis that nominated General Harrison and at St. Louis that nominated William McKinley. Was defeated in 1896 by a few votes for Representative in Legislature, in the overwhelmingly Democratic district of Brown and Monroe counties. Has always been, since a student, a staunch friend to Indiana University. Contributed largely to the passage of the first legislative endowment bill for the University. In 1898 was appointed trustee of Indiana University, reappointed in 1901, being a resident coworker and ardent friend of President Swain, now of Swarthmore, who contributed so much to the success of the institution.

CHARLES W. MILLER,

Attorney-General of Indiana.

Charles W. Miller, Attorney-General of Indiana, was born in Floyd County, Indiana, February 4, 1863, the son of Jacob B. and Isabella Miller, both natives of Floyd County, having been born there in 1819 and 1823, respectively.

Mr. Miller is the son of a farmer, and was born and reared upon a farm. He attended the common schools of his native county, and afterward spent two years in a private school at Paoli. He continued his educational work in the Normal College at Ladoga, Indiana, and later graduated from the Law Department of Michigan University in 1884, after which he settled in the practice of law in Goshen, Indiana. He followed his profession continuously until his election to his present office. He was a member of the firm of Baker & Miller, Francis E. Baker, of this firm, being placed upon the Supreme Bench of Indiana, and later appointed Judge of the United States Circuit Court of the Seventh Circuit. From this same law office at Goshen came Judge Joseph A. S. Mitchell, of the Supreme Court of Indiana, and Judge John H. Baker, of the United States District Bench.

Mr. Miller has taken much interest in the political affairs of his city, county and State, having been elected Mayor of Goshen before he was twenty-four years old, but held no other political office until elected Attorney-General in November, 1902. In 1892 he was a delegate to the National Republican Convention that renominated President Harrison, and has served as chairman of his county central committee and on the advisory committee of the State central committee.

Besides the practice of law and his labors in politics, both of which have been successful, Mr. Miller has gained position in the business world, being interested in various enterprises. He is President of the State Bank of Goshen, President of Elkhart County Loan and Trust Company, of Goshen; President of two local telephone companies, and Secretary of Lesh, Prouty & Abbott Company, of East Chicago, Indiana, manufacturers of walnut lumber.

Mr. Miller was married to Sarah Elizabeth Perkins, of Goshen, Indiana, on the 1st day of June, 1887.

FASSETT A. COTTON,

Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Fassett A. Cotton, the present Superintendent of Public Instruction of Indiana, is still a young man. However, he has made good use of the years that he has lived. Nature was generous in physical and spiritual endowments, and the preparation that he has made and the experience that he has had, have all contributed to fit him for a useful career. Mr. Cotton is a man of good presence. His frank and easy manner, his open and blunt expression, his sympathetic nature, always point to a manhood that is sincere, and impress one with his genuineness. He is a man who has always worked hard and who believes in doing his work well. To those who know him it is evident that his years of largest usefulness have just begun.

He has had experience in almost every phase of school work. Born in the country he had the advantage of a strong rural and township school training. His liking for school work took him to the State Normal at Terre Haute. Later he was graduated from Butler College and from the University of Chicago. He had much experience as a teacher in the ranks. He served several terms as County Superintendent, was Deputy State Superintendent for six years, and has been twice elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the last time leading his ticket in the election. Mr. Cotton believes in education and believes that it should be practical in the broadest and best sense. He believes that the whole experience of boys and girls should be used in making them manly men and womanly women. His one aim in his present work is to make the schools of Indiana just as good as they can be made. The educational interests of the State never made more rapid strides to the front than during the administration of Fassett A. Cotton as Superintendent of Public Instruction.

ROBERT A. BROWN,

Clerk of the Supreme Court.

Robert A. Brown was born near Franklin, in Johnson County, Indiana, November 27, 1858, being the son of Isaac S. and Mary Margaret Carnine Brown. He assisted his father on the farm until he was twenty years of age. But craving an education, he entered Franklin College, where he devoted his time to diligent study, graduating in 1884 with the degree of B. A. Following his graduation he taught one year in the Franklin High School, and then entered his chosen profession of journalism. He was successively connected with the following well known publications: The Franklin Republican, The Indianapolis Journal and the Logansport Daily Journal. In 1889, he purchased the Franklin Republican, and under his able editorial management it soon took rank among the best edited and most widely known papers of the State. And Mr. Brown was influential and highly popular with the "craft." He held the office of Vice President of the Indiana Press Association, and of the Southern Indiana Press Association. He was twice elected Secretary and twice President of the Republican State Editorial Association, and four times he was chosen as delegate to the National Editorial Association.

Mr. Brown has always been an ardent, working Republican. From 1890 to 1895 he held the office of Township Trustee of Franklin Township in Johnson County, and was president of the Township Trustees' Association of Indiana. In 1895-6 he was City Civil Engineer of Franklin, Indiana. During the legislative session of 1895 he was Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives. He was Deputy Secretary of State under

Hon. W. D. Owen from 1896 to November 22, 1898. In that year he was nominated and elected Clerk of the Supreme Court of Indiana, and in 1902 was re-elected, he being the first clerk to be re-elected since 1856. In his discharge of the duties of this important and highly responsible position, Mr. Brown has shown conspicuous ability. He has won the esteem and confidence of the people of the entire State.

Mr. Brown is a prominent member of the Columbia, Marion and Century Clubs, of Indianapolis, and of the Masonic and K. of P. fraternities. Of the latter order he is the Recorder of the Supreme Tribunal. He was a member of the first Grand Tribunal of Indiana, and declined re-appointment.

GEORGE W. SELF,

Reporter of the Supreme Court.

The subject of this sketch resides at Corydon, Harrison County, and that has been his home for forty years. In early life he was thrown upon his own efforts and resources, and is therefore essentially a self-made man. As a boy he was always ready and willing to do whatever his hands found to do. He worked in many capacities to procure means with which to educate himself. Before he arrived at majority age he enlisted in the war for the Union and served his country faithfully and well. He was promoted from a private to a first lieutenantcy. After leaving the army he read law with the late Judge Slaughter, of Corydon, in his time one of the brightest jurists of Southern Indiana. Soon after Mr. Self reached twenty-one years of age he was admitted to the practice of law and established himself at Corydon, where, through the generosity of kind friends he soon built up for himself a profitable practice which he was enjoying when he was elected to the position he now holds. In 1868 he founded the Corydon Republican, which he still owns. Prior to that time Republican newspapers had been unable to maintain themselves at Corydon. Though his party has always been in a minority in the section of the State where Mr. S. resides he has always been an active, earnest and consistent Republican. He has served his party in all capacities from a precinct commiteeman to district chairman. He held the latter position for eight years.

In 1894, without his solicitation or desire, his party nominated him as a candidate for Joint Senator for the district composed of Harrison, Crawford and Orange Counties. Though the district had hitherto been Democratic by majorities ranging from 600 to 900, Mr. S. was elected by the large majority of 901 He served through the legislative sessions of 1895 and 1897. In 1904 he was nominated by his party as a candidate for Reporter of the Supreme Court over three able and worthy opponents. With the balance of his ticket he was triumphantly elected. As some evidence of the esteem in which Mr. S. is held at home, it may be remarked that though his county has previously been Democratic he carried it by a plurality of 117, his plurality being more than one hundred greater in the county than that received by President Roosevelt.

JOSEPH H. STUBBS,

Chief of Bureau of Statistics.

He was born on a farm near Spiceland, Indiana, May 23, 1855. He attended the public schools and Spiceland Academy, but at the age of 13 entered his father's store at Spiceland, preferring this to work on the farm. He became thoroughly in love with business affairs, and when he reached his majority went into business for himself. Soon after, he went on the road as a traveling salesman and for twenty-five years faithfully followed that vocation. This gave him a wide acquaintance, and being warm-hearted and genial, he made these acquaintances his personal friends.

He never asked for any other political office than the one he now holds, but in the race for this one he made an enviable record as a vote-getter. In the Republican State Convention he was known as the "traveling men's candidate," and these men rallied around his cause most enthusiastically. He was nominated by the largest vote of the day and on the first ballot. In the election, he was third on the State ticket in the plurality received, but his majority, 61,032, was greater by ten thousand than the next highest. This is the best evidence of his personal following in the State.

In the administration of his office every effort has been put forth to make it more efficient than formerly. He has begun the preparation of more complete statistics of manufactures, railroads, banks, etc., which when completed will make a much better showing for our State.

Mr. Stubbs is devoting his entire time to this work with the same fidelity that characterized him in his private affairs, and this means a successful administration. He will be a candidate for renomination for a second term before the next Republican State Convention.

W. S. BLATCHLEY,

State Geologist.

No man ever filled the office of State Geologist of Indiana with more signal ability than has been displayed by W. S. Blatchley, the present incumbent. Although a trained scientist, he has not overlooked the practical purpose of his office, viz., to advertise to the world the great mineral resources of the State. As a result of his efforts along this line, the public was first made aware of the extent and commercial value of the deposits of clays, building stones, coal, cement materials, and other mineral products of the State, and industries requiring investments of millions of dollars have followed as a natural consequence. They have brought employment to thousands of citizens, and wealth to many, besides bringing Indiana well to the front in the matter of mineral resources.

Mr. Blatchley was born at North Madison, Connecticut, October 6, 1859. Coming to Indiana while yet a child, he received the foundation of his education in the common schools of Putnam County. He graduated from the Indiana State University in 1887, and received the Master's degree in 1891. He made a specialty of scientific subjects. He was an assistant on the Arkansas Geological Survey in 1889-'90, and was a member of Scovell's scientific expedition to Mexico in 1891. He was with the U. S. Fish Commission in 1892-'3. Ever active in study and research, his life has been a busy one. He was elected State Geologist in 1894, and has been continued in office ever since. He is a fluent writer, and is the author of numerous scientific papers, and two books, entitled respectively, "Gleanings from Nature," and "A Nature Wooing." He was also editor and part author of volumes XX to XXIX, inclusive, of the Annual Reports of the Department of Geology and Natural Resources of Indiana.

AMOS W. BUTLER,

Secretary Board of State Charities.

Amos W. Butler, Secretary of the Board of State Charities, occupies high rank among Indiana's best known scientists. He was born at Brookville, Indiana, October 1, 1860, and educated in the public schools, at Hanover College, and Indiana University, graduating from the latter institution. He took special interest in the study of zoölogy, and ornithology. His report on "The Birds of Indiana" is a recognized authority. He was the prime mover in securing the enactment of the splendid laws now in force protecting birds and their nests and eggs. He is also well posted upon the antiquities of the State, and has contributed many valuable notes and articles to this department of science. He has traveled extensively and made vast collections of specimens in the United States, Canada, and Mexico, and has contributed to many of the leading scientific publications and magazines. He is a member of several leading American scientific societies, and foreign associations. It was largely through his influence, energy and zeal that the Indiana Academy of Science was organized, and he served the society successively as Secretary, Vice-president and President. He has spent years in sociological study, devoting special attention to the subject of charities and corrections.

Mr. Butler is an unselfish laborer for any cause in which he believes, and has been more zealous for the welfare and honor of the State than for his own advancement. As Secretary of the Board of State Charities he has made a most enviable record for devotion to duty, and sympathetic zeal for the betterment and reform of the State's unfortunate and criminal classes. His publications and reports are looked forward to and eagerly read by a large and increasing number of our citizens, and their influence for good could not well be overestimated. Mr. Butler was elected Secretary of the Board of State Charities in 1897 and has served continuously since.

WILLIAM E. HENRY,
State Librarian.

William E. Henry, State Librarian, was born in Fayette County, Indiana, in which county his grandparents had settled as early as 1820 and 1825, thus being among the earliest settlers of that section of the State. The paternal grandfather was one of the most prominent early farmers, and the maternal grandfather, Dr. Amos Chapman, was among the earliest physicians of that county. Mr. Henry is the son of John Henry, and Elizabeth Chapman Henry. At an early age he removed to Howard County with his parents, both of whom have since passed away.

Mr. Henry received such education as was offered by district schools in the newest county in the State, never having attended school more than three months in any one year until he was twenty-one years of age, at which time he began teaching a country school. He afterward graduated from the Indiana State Normal School with the class of 1885, then served five years as principal of the Peru High School, then entering the State University senior class graduated in 1891. He remained as instructor in English in the same institution until January 1, 1894, when he entered Chicago University, remaining there until June, 1895, holding a fellowship in English the second year. He was elected professor of English in Franklin College July, 1895, and resigned that position to accept the office of State Librarian, to which he was elected in March, 1897. He was married July 31, 1895, to Margaret Atkinson Roberts of Indianapolis, Indiana, who died August 20, 1900. On April 26, 1903, he married Sylvia M. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo. He has one daughter, Elizabeth, born February 17, 1897.

Mr. Henry is especially well qualified for the duties of the important position he holds. The State Library was never more efficiently administered than it has been while under his charge. Methodical, painstaking and industrious in his habits, and cordial in his dealings with the public, he has won the universal esteem and confidence of the people of the State.

UNION B. HUNT,

Chairman of the Railroad Commission of Indiana.

(Sketch prepared by James E. Watson.)

Union B. Hunt, chairman of the Railroad Commission of Indiana, was born September 2, 1864, in Randolph County, Indiana. When but five years of age he was taken by his parents to Vermillion County, Illinois, but they returned to the old home in Randolph County in 1877, and there the subject of our sketch has since maintained his residence. He possessed the natnral thirst for an education which has spurred so many American youths onward, first in the struggle for knowledge, and later to climb the heights of usefulness, professionally, in business pursuits, or in the service of State or Nation. To provide ways and means for his education, and fit himself for the battle of life, young Hunt worked on the farm, in a tile factory, clerked in a store, and performed many other kinds of honest labor. He made it a rule to leave no task uncompleted, or purpose unaccomplished.

He was admitted to the Randolph County bar in 1899, and entered successfully into the practice of the law. He held partnerships successively with John R. Wright, now deceased; C. L. and T. W. Hutchens, under the firm name of Hutchens, Hunt and Hutchens, and with Hon. E. L. Watson, father of the writer. He had a brief newspaper experience, being two years editor and part owner of the Winchester Herald. In 1898 Mr. Hunt was nominated by the Republican party of Indiana for the office of Secretary of State. His competitors for the honor were Hon. C. F. Coffin, of Indianapolis, and John C. Chaney, of Sullivan, now a member of Congress from the Second Congressional District. He was elected in the following November, and was renominated and re-elected for a second term, in 1900. As Secretary of State he made an excellent record. The office was never more ably administered, or filled by a man more universally popular with the people of the State. During his term he secured the passage of a law that puts many thousands of dollars into the treasury of the State each year. Mr. Hunt also made for himself, during the two campaigns mentioned and subsequent ones, the reputation of being one of the most effective campaigners in the State. He is an orator of great force and ability, and the services of no public speaker in the State are more in demand.

When Governor Hanly was inaugurated in January, 1905, Mr. Hunt became his private secretary, assisting the Governor with his arduous duties during the session of the Legislature. On the first day of May the Governor appointed him a member of the new Railroad Commission, and when the Commission organized, Mr. Hunt was elected chairman. Both these positions came unsolicited, being voluntarily tendered by the Governor.

Mr. Hunt's great personal popularity and his ability for making friends are further attested by the fact that, in 1897, he was elected Grand Chancellor of the order of Knights of Pythias for the grand domain of Indiana. He served until October, 1898, and is now one of the five Supreme Representatives from this State. He represented Indiana, with his colleagues, in the conventions of the Supreme Lodge in Chicago, San Francisco and Louisville respectively. He is also a member of the Masonic fraternity and of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Hunt was married in 1891 to Miss Mary M. Hinshaw, and the union is blessed by a bright little girl, aged twelve years, named Ethel.

CHARLES V. McADAMS,

Member of Railroad Commission.

Charles V. McAdams, a member of the Railroad Commission of Indiana, was born in Warren County, Indiana, February 15, 1858. He is of Irish parentage, being able to trace his ancestry back to the county of Armaugh, Ireland, where his great grandfather was born in 1774. The family emigrated to America in 1802. Valentine Best McAdams, the father of our subject, was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, in 1813. In early manhood he emigrated to Warren County, Indiana, where he married Evaline Mears in 1842. Of their family of nine children, Charles V. was one. He was left to face the battles of life alone at the tender age of thirteen years by the death of his parents. Not only that, the responsibility of assisting to provide for the rest of an almost helpless family also fell to his lot. He worked for wages on the farm, and performed other kinds of honest toil for several years, winning such success that by and by he concluded he could afford to educate himself. He attended country school in the winter time, and later attended two terms at Green Hill Seminary, a United Brethren institution. Following this he taught several terms of district school, clerking in stores during vacations. In 1879 he went to Williamsport and began reading law in the office of Hon. James M. Rabb. In time a partnership with Mr. Rabb was tendered and accepted, and continued until 1882, when the latter was elected judge of the Circuit Court. From this time forward Mr.

McAdams assumed the business of the firm, and conducted it successfully until he was appointed by Governor Hanly in March, 1905, without request or solicitation on Mr. McAdams' part, to membership on the newly established Railroad Commission of Indiana.

Judge McAdams has carved out a success in life by industry, honesty and zeal, and his splendid abilities and strict integrity are universally recognized. He is an enthusiastic Republican, and has long assisted to fight the battles of his party in the county and State, but was never a candidate for office. He is a member of the Masonic and K. of P. fraternities. He has been twice married, his first wife, Ida May Swarts, dying in 1884, leaving one child. He was married to his second wife, Mary B. Hentz, in 1891, and this union has been blessed with the birth of two children.

JUDGE WILLIAM J. WOOD,

Member of Railroad Commission.

Judge William J. Wood, the Democratic member of the Railroad Commission, was born in Florence, Alabama, about fifty years ago. His people and he himself were distinguished in Alabama; his father having been a brigadier-general and his uncle a colonel in the Confederate Army, and a near relative of his mother's, Judge Stone, was for many years Chief Justice of Alabama. His grandfather, Col. Alexander Wood, who came to Alabama early in the last century, was the first Mayor of Florence, and his grandfather's grandfather, Leighton Wood, Jr., was Solicitor-General of Virginia in 1786. In the Richmond Times of May 22, 1792, is published a remarkable letter from Leighton Wood, Jr., to Gov. ernor Randolph protesting against giving a bond of office on the grounds, "1st," said Mr. Wood, "If an oath of office is not sufficient to guard the public from chicanery in their servants, I should lay but little dependence in a bond," and, "2nd, so far as integrity in matters of this kind is necessary, I will dare to trust myself." This was the high standard of the times to which it is desirable that officials of this day should return.

Judge Wood is a college man, was Prosecuting Attorney, State Senator, and Judge of the Probate Court, and State Tax Commissioner of Alabama. He became a citizen of Indiana, and in this State has been the Manager of the Evansville Traffic Bureau, Secretary of the Evansville Business Association, and President of the Business Men's Association, in all of which positions he greatly contributed to the upbuilding of Evansville. The people of that city and surrounding towns and cities without reference to parties, unanimously endorsed him to Governor Hanly for Railroad Commissioner. Judge Wood became connected with railroads in 1882; organized, constructed and was General Manager of the E., S. & N. Railroad, was Assistant Attorney at Evansville, and finally Third Vice President of the L. & N. Railroad Company, moving to Nashville, Tenn., to hold this position. He is trustworthy and popular, and well equipped in every way for the important place he holds on the first Railroad Commission of Indiana.

J. N. HURTY, M. D., PHAR. D.,
Secretary State Board of Health.

J. N. Hurty, M. D., Phar. D., State Health Officer, and Secretary of the State Board of Health, was born at Lebanon, Ohio, in 1852, of German parentage. His father was a pioneer teacher in Indiana, having been Superintendent of Schools at Richmond in 1856, at Liberty from 1858 to 1862, and later at North Madison, Rising Sun, and Lawrenceburg.

Dr. J. N. Hurty, the subject of this sketch, studied medicine, pharmacy and chemistry, at Philadelphia from 1872 to 1875. Selecting his life work early, there was no hesitancy.

Dr. Hurty has been a continuous resident of Indianapolis since 1875. During that time he served two years as a member of the faculty of Purdue University. He served as a member of the Indianapolis City Board of Health, and was City Health Officer for nine years. He became State Health Officer, and Secretary of the State Board of Health in 1887, and has held the position continuously since, rendering the people of the State most valuable service. He has earned and enjoys fully the utmost confidence of our citizenship. No subject affecting the public health is too insignificant to incite his interest and investigaton, and no point in the State is too remote for his personal visitation when duty seems to call.

Dr. Hurty is also entitled to much credit for recent legislation to prevent food adulterations, and to safeguard the public health in various ways.

Dr. Hurty is a member of the American Medical Society, the Indiana State Medical Society, The American Public Health Association, and the American Chemical Society. He is also professor of hygiene in the Indiana Medical College, at Indianapolis. He has contributed numerous papers on medical, chemical and hygienic subjects, and is the author of "Field Water Inspection," and "School Lessons in Physiology and Hygiene."

DANIEL H. McABEE,

State Factory Inspector.

Daniel H. McAbee, State Factory Inspector, was born near Bolivar, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, on the line of the old Pennsylvania Canal. The packet and old section boats of that day were as familiar as the flyer and trolley are today. The boatman's horn for open lock and cry of "low bridge" were the sounds that greeted one's ears while on a journey. Now, it is "all aboard," or "The third and last call for dinner, fourth car to the rear." Mr. McAbee was a driver on one of the last boats that went through the long aqueduct which crossed the Allegheny River into Pittsburg.

In 1861, before he was yet sixteen, Mr. McAbee enlisted in Company G, 76th Pennsylvania Volunteers (Keystone Zouaves). After serving to January 1, 1862, and taking an honorable part in six or eight engagements, he re-enlisted and served until the close of the war. He was wounded in the right arm August 16, 1864, and rejoined his regiment as it was embarking on its first attack on Fort Fisher. In all he was in about twenty-two general engagements, among them being Cold Harbor, Petersburg, first and second charges on Forts Wagner and Fisher, and skirmishes too numerous to mention. He was discharged as First Sergeant, July 26, 1865—was home one year, and was still too young to vote for honest John Woode for Congress. He graduated from Duff's Commercial College at Pittsburg. He was afterward employed for three years as fireman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and it was during this time that he was married to Mary L. Richards, of the Smoky

City, to which union there were born three sons and three daughters. Harvey R. McAbee, a well known K. of P., and member of the Sons of Veterans, who died in Butte, Montana, October 16, 1902, was the oldest. Dr. McAbee, of Connersville; Mrs. Elmer F. Pittenger, DeSoto, Ind., and Will D. McAbee, a Shortridge student, are the only three of the children now living.

In 1869 Mr. McAbee came to Indiana, and was employed in various manufacturing institutions in the State until he was offered the position of Factory Inspector by Governor James A. Mount, in 1897, the same year the office was created by the General Assembly. In 1899 he was reappointed by Governor Mount without solicitation, and in 1903 he received another appointment from the hands of Governor W. T. Durbin.

The Department of Inspection, more generally known as the Factory Inspector's office, stands well up with the corresponding department of other States. Great credit is due Chief Inspector McAbee and his corps of deputies for their efficient work. For a display of blanks and methods of work the Department was granted a gold medal by the Universal Exposition at Paris in 1900, and again by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904. These awards, carrying with them such high recognition of the excellence of the Department, have naturally been very pleasing to Mr. McAbee. The State has every reason to be proud of the Department of Inspection, and the work it is accomplishing.

OTWAY A. BAKER,
Custodian of Public Buildings.

Otway A. Baker, Custodian of Public Buildings, was born at Trinity Springs, Martin County, Indiana, August 7, 1867. The foundation of his education was laid in the common schools, while in his youth and young manhood he cultivated a healthy brain and muscles, along with habits of honest toil and self-reliance, by work upon the farm. Taking a lively interest in all questions that affected State or Nation, nothing was more natural than that he should drift into the game of politics, and his neighbors, recognizing his abilities and aptitude, lent him all necessary encouragement. Hence we find him a member of the Republican county central committee as early as 1888, and he has been connected with the organization in an official capacity ever since. He served the committee for a while as treasurer, and is now chairman.

In 1898 Mr. Baker was elected State Representative from the joint district composed of Martin and Orange Counties, carrying the Democratic county of Martin by two hundred and sixteen majority. He was the first Republican to be elected from the district. As a member of the sixty-first General Assembly he was chairman of the Reformatory Committee that brought about the appropriation for the cell house at the Southern Reformatory, which is among the best and most modern in the United States.

Mr. Baker is also an active worker in the Lincoln League, having been organizer for the Second Congressional District for two terms. He is a charter member of K. of P. Lodge No. 221, of Shoals, is a member of the M. E. Church, and an active worker in the Epworth League, having served two terms as treasurer for the Vincennes District. He is a member of the Marion Club at Indianapolis.

Mr. Baker was appointed Custodian of Public Buildings by Governor Hanly April 15, 1905.

SAMUEL C. SHUTT,

Chief Engineer of State House.

Samuel C. Shutt, Chief Engineer of the State House, holds a position of large responsibilities, and that he has performed his duties efficiently and satisfactorily is attested by the fact that he has held the place continuously since 1897, and under appointment of three different Governors, viz., Mount, Durbin and Hanly. He possesses all the qualifications of thorough training, watchfulness, caution, and attentiveness to details, necessary for the proper care and operation of the machinery of the State House, and the safety of the great building, and those having business in it. He is good humored, affable and genial, and has lots of friends.

Mr. Shutt was born on a farm near Zanesville, Ohio, in 1857. When he was 17 years of age his father died and left him to begin the battle of life on his own responsibilities. He secured a position in Blandy's machine shop, at Zanesville, where he worked until 21 years of age. In 1882 he came to Indianapolis, and in 1895 was appointed assistant engineer at the Court House. This position he held until April 1, 1897, when Governor Mount appointed him Chief Engineer of the State House, in which position he has served continuously since.

Mr. Shutt is a Republican, and has always been active in the interests of his party, in State, county and city.

FRED L. GEMMER,

Private Secretary to the Governor.

Fred L. Gemmer, private secretary to Governor Hanly, was born at Williamsport, in Warren County, Indiana, November 18, 1866, and finding that a pretty good place, has remained there ever since. He is the son of Major Philip Gemmer, who won an honorable distinction as a soldier for the Union in the war of '61 to '65.

Secretary Gemmer acquired his education in the common and high schools of Warren County, and when he had reached young manhood, embarked in the mercantile business. His habits of industry, reputation for rigid honesty, and his friendly, pleasing manner in dealing with patrons, made success sure and easy. He was for a long time manager of a large dry goods store in which Governor Hanly was interested. In 1899 Mr. Gemmer was elected cashier of the Williamsport State Bank, a position which he filled successfully and satisfactorily until he was invited, in April, 1905, to accept the highly responsible position of private secretary to the Governor.

The local esteem and confidence in which Mr. Gemmer is held, is attested by the fact that he served for a number of years as a member of the school board of Williamsport, was City Clerk and Treasurer for three terms, Township Trustee four years, and chairman of the Warren County Republican Central Committee during the last two campaigns. He is happily married, and is the father of two bright children, both boys.

HARRY H. SLOUGH,

Clerk Bureau of Public Printing and Stationery.

The life of a "printer" may not always be eventful, but there is never a time when it is not "strenuous." Always exacting, the business is now a technical trade, a science, and while it has its difficulties and its hardships, its rewards are not to be despised, especially in the matter of mental training and discipline. The man who is not an artist, a mechanic, a scholar and a philosopher, is no printer.

Harry H. Slough, the subject of this sketch, would naturally be too modest to admit all these qualities, but the writer, also a quasi printer, and for the nonce his biographer, insists that he is a printer, and a good one, with all the term implies.

Mr. Slough was born at Macon City, Mo., November 2, 1857, his parents being Henry H. and Mary J. Stone Slough. They moved to Iowa when Harry was but four years old, and from that State the father enlisted in the Union Army. He was seriously injured at the battle of Vicksburg, and his health was never regained. The wife and mother died when young Slough was fourteen years of age, and the home was broken up. From that time on our subject was thrown upon his own resources. Drifting to the great West, he learned the printing trade in Iowa. From there he went to Kansas, being then about nineteen years old. At that time the counties were just being organized, and new towns founded, and about the first thing to be done in either case was to establish a newspaper and printing office. Mr. Slough assisted in so many such cases that he thinks he unpacked and set up more printing outfits than any other man in Kansas. In 1887 he returned from Kansas, and spent four years in Toledo, Ohio. He then came to Indianapolis, where he has remained ever since, being identified most of the time with the printing business. Two years, however, he was field agent for the U. S. Census Department, gathering and compiling statistics of different kinds. He had been with the Indianapolis Star about a year when appointed Clerk of the Bureau of Printing and Stationery. He is a hard worker, highly competent, genial and accommodating, and is making a splendid record.

FRANK I. GRUBBS,

Deputy Secretary of State.

Frank I. Grubbs, Deputy Secretary of State, was born at New Castle, Indiana, May 19, 1858, being the son of Thomas M. and Caroline F. Hudelson Grubbs. His father was First Lieutenant of the 57th Regiment Indiana Infantry in the late Civil War, and his life was among the almost countless sacrifices for the Union, he having contracted a fatal illness while in the service, and died in 1864.

Frank I. Grubbs, the subject of this sketch, entered a printing office as an apprentice at the age of thirteen years. He proved an apt student in the printing business and resolved to make it his life work. He was not only enthusiastic but ambitious, and after just five years in the Banner office, at Knightstown, Indiana, he established the Knightstown Herald, a newspaper of his own. But the field was already overcrowded with such enterprises, and the Herald ceased to exist after a precarious life of ten months. Following this Mr. Grubbs conducted a job office for awhile, and later, in partnership with John C. Moore, established the Knightstown Shield. In 1884 he sold his business and went to Indianapolis, were he received his first experience in metropolitan newspaper work by accepting employment on the Indianapolis Times. He was the first city editor of the Indianapolis Sun. He also served for a time as news editor and business manager for the Indianapolis branch of the American Press Association. Following this he spent five years as managing editor of the Lafayette Courier, and it was while thus engaged that he was appointed Deputy Secretary of State under Hon. Daniel E. Storms, without having applied for the place. He entered upon his new and highly responsible duties January 17, 1903, and is entitled to a share of credit for the fact that under the present administration the business of the Secretary of State's office was never more expeditiously performed. A record was made in the publication of the Acts of the Legislatures of 1903 and 1905, the Governor being enabled to issue his proclamation April 23 in 1903, and April 15 in 1905. Previously the proclamations were issued a month later on an average.

Mr. Grubbs prepared and successfully used his influence with the Legislature of 1905 to secure the passage of a bill permitting a change from the marginal side notes form used in publishing the laws to paragraph sub-headings, a most desirable change.

Mr. Grubbs was married October 29, 1884, to Miss Kate Butler, of Knightstown.

JOHN C. BILLHEIMER,

Deputy Auditor of State.

John C. Billheimer, Deputy Auditor of State, and Secretary of the State Board of Tax Commissioners, was born March 3, 1857, in Wayne County, Indiana, where he lived until after his marriage in 1879, when he removed to his present residence in Washington, Daviess County, Indiana.

He is a lawyer by profession, having studied law with James and Joseph M. Brown, of New Castle. He is a successful attorney, always enjoying a good practice, and standing high at the bar of his county and the State.

Mr. Billheimer has always taken an active interest in Republican politics of the State. He has been chairman of the committee of his county, and helped to change Daviess from a strong Democratic to a strong Republican county. He was an alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1888, was a member of the State committee in 1892, 1902 and 1904, and is a member at the present time. He was Consul of the United States to Zanzibar, and supervisor of the census of his district, having received two commissions from President McKinley.

Notwithstanding the many years he has worked in politics, he was never a candidate for an elective office.

Mr. Billheimer is one of the best known of the present "denizens" of the State House. He has always performed his duties proficiently and is courteous and attentive. The great personal popularity he enjoys is richly deserved.

LAWRENCE McTURNAN,

Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Lawrence McTurnan, Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Indiana, was born at Rigdon, Indiana, in 1874, where he attended country and village schools. He attended the Marion Normal College and Fairmount Academy, and began teaching at the age of 16. He attended Indiana State University and the State Normal School, graduating from the latter institution in 1897. In June of 1897 he was elected County Superintendent of Madison County for a term of two years. In 1899 he was re-elected for the same office for a period of four years. He resigned the county superintendency after serving in this capacity for five years to accept the city superintendency of the Alexandria schools, which position he also resigned in 1903 to become Deputy State Superintendent of Schools under Superintendent of Public Instruction, F. A. Cotton. The legislature of 1905 created the office of Assistant State Superintendent and Mr. Cotton promoted Mr. McTurnan to this position, which he now holds.

CHARLES B. RILEY,

Secretary Indiana Railroad Commission.

Chas. B. Riley, Secretary of the Railroad Commission of Indiana, was reared in Decatur County, Indiana. Like so many other ambitious young men he early formed a purpose to enter the profession of the law, and devoted about three years to study with the firm of C. & J. K. Ewing, at Greensburg. But an attractive opportunity for engaging in the grain business caused him to abandon the law and transfer his residence to Rushville, which is still his home and has been continuously with the exception of a few years spent in Kansas and Colorado, and twenty-two months in the United States Government service sixteen of which were in Cuba during the Spanish-American war.

In the grain and general shipping business Mr. Riley won a splendid success and on account of his experience along these lines and his high qualifications for the position otherwise, he was selected in January, 1904, as Secretary of the Indiana Grain Dealers' Association, and directed to inaugurate a campaign for the procurement, if possible, of some legislation for the protection of the shipping interests of the State, and the correction of certain abuses from which shippers had been suffering at the hands of the transportation companies. As a result of his efforts many individual shippers and some thirty commercial organizations of the State, with many thousands of members, were interested in the movement which finally resulted in the enactment by the General Assembly of 1905 of the "Newhouse Railroad Commission Law" by practically a unanimous vote of both Senate and House. The present Railroad Commission came into existence pursuant to the provisions of this measure.

Mr. Riley was selected by the Commission as its Secretary, and the choice was recognized by the shippers all over the State as a well-earned compliment to him and was fully appreciated by them.

Mr. Riley's capacity for hard work, his practical knowledge and experience as a business man and shipper, as well as his fair and conservative views as to the rights of both the carrier and shipper are a guarantee of faithful and efficient service as Secretary of the Commission.

Mr. Riley's family consists of a wife and three daughters, one of whom, Mrs. G. C. Bosley, resides in Indianapolis, while the other two are students at DePauw University.

SOLOMON H. ESAREY,

Assistant Reporter of the Supreme Court.

Solomon H. Esarey, Assistant Reporter of the Supreme Court, was born in Perry County, Indiana, May 17, 1866. He is of Scotch-Welsh descent, being the son of John C. and Barbara [Ewing] Esarey.

Mr. Esarey remained upon the farm until he was about eighteen years of age, assisting his father during the summer, and attending the common schools in the winter time. He later entered Central Normal College at Danville, and graduated from the classical course in that institution in 1890. He taught three years in the common schools, and one year in the high school at Cannelton. Meanwhile he had read law as time and opportunity afforded, and in partnership with Mr. E. F. Barker, of Cannelton, began practicing in 1892, enjoying a highly satisfactory success. But desiring to perfect himself for the work of his chosen profession he entered Boston University for a two years' course in law in 1900. From 1902 to 1905 he resumed the practice in Cannelton, during which time he was connected with many very important cases of litigation in the Supreme Court in addition to his work in the local courts. In January, 1905, he was appointed Assistant Reporter of the Supreme Court under Hon. George W. Self. Although his work here is of an important and responsible character, Mr. Esarey's friends do not doubt for a moment that he will measure up to the full requirements of his responsibilties and duties.

Mr. Esarey was married to Emma L. Clark, February 8, 1893.

DAVID M. GEETING,

Deputy Chief Statistician.

David M. Geeting, Chief Deputy in the Bureau of Statistics, was born and reared on a farm in Ohio. In 1868 he came to Indiana where he began teaching. He completed the course in Farmer's College, Ohio, in 1873. In 1879 he was elected County Superintendent of Schools of Daviess County, Indiana, serving four years. He then accepted a position in the New Albany schools, resigning that to accept the office of Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, March 15, 1887. He served as such officer for four years. He was then chosen Superintendent of Schools at Madison, which position he held till elected State Superintendent in November, 1894. In this office he made a notable record. His first work was the preparation of a State Course of Study, covering the first eight years of school work. At the completion of this course pupils were graduated into the high schools. These township commencements gave an impetus to education never before experienced in Indiana, and that influence still remains. During his term of four years in this office he attended more than four hundred of these commencements and urged the establishment of township high schools. He stands distinctly as the originator of the township high school idea in Indiana. No other State Superintendent can lay claim to more beneficial legislation than that secured by him during the Legislatures of 1897 and 1899.

These laws are known as—

1. Compulsory Education.
2. Establishing Township High Schools.
3. Making the office of County Superintendent four years and defining qualifications.
4. The New Transfer Law.
5. Enlarging the State Board of Education.
6. Granting teachers a State license in the common branches.
7. Making a six months' school term obligatory.
8. Providing for the abandonment of small schools, the first step in centralization.
9. Empowering small towns to abandon school corporations.
10. Recognizing State licenses from other States here.

Mr. Geeting has been a man of action rather than a theorist. He is giving his efficient services in the office he now holds and will do all in his power to make the work valuable. The position came to him through a long personal friendship with the Chief of the Bureau and his well-known qualifications to perform such work.

LYCURGUS P. McCORMACK,
Member Indiana Labor Commission.

As a member of the Indiana Labor Commission, Lycurgus P. McCormack is one of the State's official peacemakers. There is no doubt but that the work of the Commission has been very fruitful in encouraging and promoting cordial relations between labor and capital. When the Commission first came into existence, its time was occupied almost wholly in efforts to settle strikes; now its time is devoted to preventing strikes—a very healthful change. Mr. McCormack takes a keen interest in the work, and both sides to any pending controversy are always sure of a fair and sympathetic hearing at his hands. The Commission consists of two members, the law requiring that one be an employer of labor, and the other an employe for wages, Mr. McCormack was given his place on the Board as an employe, having been appointed by Governor Mount in 1897, and reappointed regularly since.

Mr. McCormack was born at Danville, in Hendricks County, Indiana, January 17, 1846, being the son of Hezekiah L. and Lucinda Beaty McCormack. He was educated in the Danville Academy, and at Asbury (now De Pauw) University, graduating in the latter institution in 1873. But before this he had learned the printing business, having finished an apprenticeship at the old Cincinnati Gazette office. Yielding readily to the fascination of the art, he followed the life of a printer and proofreader continuously until the time of his appointment on the Labor Commission, excepting a short while he was employed as a railroad solicitor in the South. He worked in various cities in this and other States. He studied law while at Asbury University, and was admitted to the bar at Greencastle and at Indianapolis, but never practiced the profession. He has lived in Indianapolis for the last thirty years, and is the owner of valuable city property, and of a fine stock farm in Hamilton County, in which he takes great pride. Mr. McCormack is unmarried.

Z. T. SWEENEY,

Commissioner of Fisheries and Game.

Z. T. Sweeney, Commissioner of Fisheries and Game, was born in Liberty, Kentucky, February 10, 1849, being the youngest of the four sons of Rev. G. E. Sweeney, a minister noted for his great eloquence and zeal in the cause of the Christian religion. All four of his sons, upon reaching manhood, also entered the ministry, winning honorable distinction therein. Z. T. Sweeney, the subject of this sketch, held his first charge at Paris, Illinois. He removed later to Columbus, Indiana, where he still resides. He was pastor of the Christian Church at Columbus for twenty-seven years, during which time the congregation grew from a membership of about two hundred to over twelve hundred. Mr. Sweeney is an evangelist of great power, and his services in this capacity have long been in great demand. He has also won wide renown as a lecturer, and has appeared on the public platform in almost every portion of our country. He is a man of splendid educational attainments, and possesses literary talents of a high order. He is a member of the Victoria Institute, London; Institute of Christian Philosophy, New York, and the National Geographical Society, Washington, D. C. He has been president of the Indiana Christian Sunday School Association, was chancellor of Butler University, and served as consul-general to Turkey. He is author of a book entitled "Under Ten Flags," which has had a very large sale. Mr. Sweeney is noted for his earnestness of purpose and his decisiveness in carrying out his plans. He believes the world will get out of the pathway of the man who knows where he is going. He was appointed Commissioner of Fisheries and Game by Governor Mount in 1897, reappointed by Governor Mount in 1899, and appointed for a third term by Governor Durbin in 1903. His services have given the highest possible satisfaction, and the fish and game laws of the State were never more thoroughly and intelligently enforced than under his administration. Mr. Sweeney was married in 1875 to Miss Linnie Irwin, and his family now consists of his wife and two children, the oldest, Jeannette, being the wife of Lieutenant-Governor Hugh Th. Miller. The youngest, Elsie, is attending school in Indianapolis. His only son, Joseph L., died in August, 1900.

WILLIAM H. FREEMAN,
State Forester.

William H. Freeman, Secretary of the State Board of Forestry, and ex officio State Forester, was born on a farm in Wabash County, Indiana, September 11, 1863. His childhood, youth and young manhood, until he was twenty-three years of age, were spent upon the farm. He experienced all the toil and hardships of the profession to which he was born, but drank in the delights of the free and open-air life of the rural dweller. His love and admiration for the fields and the forests, the streams and landscapes, furnished an inspiration, all unconsciously at that time, however, for what seems to be his appointed work. Nothing could have led more naturally to the study and practice of the science of forestry, and the State is now reaping the benefits of his knowledge of, and devotion to, the subject.

Mr. Freeman's opportunities for an education were at first very meager, but at the age of twenty-three he left the farm and devoted himself to diligent study. Completing the common school course, he entered the Northern Indiana Normal School and Business Institute, at Valparaiso, where he graduated in both the scientific and business departments. Later he graduated from the Indiana State Normal School, at Terre Haute, after a four years' course. Following this he taught two years in the district schools, and then served four years as principal of the high school at Urbana, Indiana, and three years as principal of the Columbia School at Anderson.

On May 18, 1901, he was appointed Secretary of the State Board of Forestry, by Governor Winfield T. Durbin, a position which he still holds, and for which he has demonstrated his splendid fitness by intelligent direction, and incessant labor, study, and research. He has infused new life into the long neglected subject of forestry in Indiana, and his work is certain to bear still more valuable fruits in the future.

WILL H. WHITTAKER,

General Superintendent Indiana Reformatory, Jeffersonville.

Will H. Whittaker was born near Delphi, Indiana, February 17, 1861. His father, William H. Whittaker, was a native of Ohio, and a wood-turner by trade. His mother, Martha Dewey, belonged to one of the first families of Carroll County, her father, Aaron Dewey, having laid out and surveyed the town of Delphi. Martha Dewey, the grandmother of Mr. Whittaker, was a practicing physician of Carroll County, making her calls to many of the homes on horseback.

The subject of this sketch was educated in the country schools of Carroll County and the city schools of Delphi. While attending school in Delphi for three years he walked a distance of three miles, working night and morning for his board and clothes. At the age of twenty he taught one term of school and was then appointed to a clerkship in the County Auditor's office.

On November 15, 1883, he was married to Miss Jennie Crowder, who lived but eight months after their marriage. He was again married October 10, 1887, to Miss Ida M. Swatts. They have one boy, Ralph, who is twelve years old.

In November, 1887, Mr. Whittaker was appointed by his uncle, Henderson Dunkle, to the position of Deputy Auditor of Carroll County. After retiring from the Auditor's office he went into business for himself in Delphi, at the same time serving in the City Council as chairman of the finance and water committees during the construction of the city waterworks, which today is one of the few water plants owned and operated by any city that is a good investment for the taxpayer. In 1895 Mr. Whittaker was appointed Chief Clerk of the Indiana State Prison, holding the position for six and a half years, during which time he inaugurated a system of accounting for State institutions that attracted attention beyond the borders of his own State.

Mr. Whittaker is a Republican and has always taken a great interest in the politics of the State, having served as chairman of the committee in Carroll County in 1894, and as secretary of the State committee in 1902 and 1903. In July, 1903, Mr. Whittaker was appointed General Superintendent of the Indiana Reformatory. His work there is attracting much attention on account of the business methods he has introduced and his advanced ideas in reformatory work.

RICHARD OTTO JOHNSON,

Superintendent Indiana State School for the Deaf, Indianapolis.

Richard Otto Johnson was born in Indiana in 1858 and was educated in Virginia, where he was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute (the West Point of the South) July 4, 1876, the youngest member of his class. He studied law at Indianapolis and was admitted to the bar on his twenty-first birthday.

He was made secretary of the State School for the Deaf in October, 1883, and served in that capacity until July, 1889, when he was made Superintendent, which position he still holds. He is now entering upon his twenty-third year of service to the deaf and the State, and in point of years of continuous service in one institution, is the oldest Superintendent in the State.

At the present time Mr. Johnson is president of American Conference of Superintendents and Principals of Schools for the Deaf; member and chairman of executive committee of American Conference; member of board of directors of American Speech Association; chairman kindergarten section American Convention of Instructors of the Deaf; and an active member National Educational Association.

At the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904 Mr. Johnson served as member of the international jury of award, Department of Education; as chairman exhibit committee of American Speech Association; and was appointed by President Francis one of a committee of three having in charge the "Helen Keller Day" celebration. He had conferred upon him by the exposition a gold medal and diploma for "Original research and publications concerning deafness," and also a commemorative medal and diploma for "Active interest and efficient co-operation in the Universal Exposition of 1904."

Mr. Johnson is an active Free and Accepted Mason, having received all the symbolic, capitular and chivalric degrees. He is a Thirty-Second degree Scottish Rite Mason, a Knight Templar and a Noble of the Mystic Shrine. As a member of the Phi Delta Theta college fraternity he is vice-president of the Indianapolis Alumni Chapter.

The prevailing opinion, and one very frequently expressed by Mr. Johnson's professional brethren throughout the United States and Canada, who regard him as one of the foremost educators of the deaf, and by the public press, State officials and others who know him and the school, is that he has brought order out of confusion and made the Indiana State School for the Deaf one of the very best to be found in America. Hundreds of deaf children have passed under his eye and out into the world to happy, useful and honorable lives. Well known in every corner of Indiana and with an international reputation, Mr. Johnson is still a young man and ought to have many years of his best service ahead of him. He is a firm believer in non-partisan management, efficient services, and the merit rule, and his controlling sentiment is. "Whatever you do, do well."

EUGENE E. YORK,

Superintendent Indiana Boys' School, Plainfield.

Eugene E. York, the present head of our State's institution for reclaiming her wayward boys—the Indiana Boys' School, at Plainfield—has been prominent in educational circles for a number of years. Born in Lawrence, Kansas, in 1866, he came to Indiana at the age of two years with his parents, who settled on the National Road two miles west of Plainfield, within sight and sound of the institution of which he was some thirty years later to become Superintendent.

After completing his course in the common schools, he entered De Pauw University Normal. At the close of his first year in the Normal he accepted the principalship of a school in the Hawaiian Islands, which position he held for fifteen months, returning home to gratify the wish of his parents. He taught in the public schools of Hendricks County for several years, and on March 15, 1893, entered the employ of the Indiana Reform School for Boys, now the Indiana Boys' School.

By his faithfulness to duty and his seeming fitness for the work, he rose from one department of the work to another, till in November, 1896, his efficiency was recognized and rewarded by the appointment to the position of clerk of the institution. In March, 1901, because of his thorough familiarity with the work in all of its departments, he was selected by the Board of Control as Superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. T. J. Charlton, and by the faithful and conscientious discharge of the duties devolving upon him as such, he has proven the wisdom of the board's action.

Since his appointment to the superintendency he has been a close student of sociology and criminology, and has been closely affiliated with the charitable work of the State and Nation, having actively participated in all the State and National conferences of charities and correction, as well as other organizations of the kind.

The knowledge and experience thus gained have been incorporated into his efforts at the institution, resulting in the adoption of many reforms in the care and discipline of the inmates, thereby maintaining the high plane of efficiency that has characterized this worthy institution these many years.

ALBERT E. CARROLL,

Superintendent Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth, Fort Wayne.

Albert Emery Carroll, Superintendent of the Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth, was born at North Vernon, Indiana, November 9, 1869, being the son of George and Louisa Carroll. He was educated at the Repert private school at Somerset, Ky., and in the public schools at Indianapolis, Indiana.

His characteristics of thoroughness, progressiveness and unflagging energy, coupled with frankness of disposition and sturdy honesty, have won Mr. Carroll his success. As superintendent of the School for Feeble-Minded Youth he has proven his splendid abilities and entire fitness for the position; the affairs of the institution were never better administered than while under his charge. He was appointed acting superintendent August 31, 1903, to succeed Alexander Johnson, resigned, and on May 5, 1904, was regularly appointed Superintendent for a period of three years.

The institution over which Mr. Carroll presides is one of the most praiseworthy the State has established. Its mission is to care for that type of defectives known as the feeble-minded and idiotic, who, when left to themselves, become a menace to society and a burden upon their families or to the public. Here they are given the rudiments of an education and taught, if possible, some useful trade, to fit them for helpful lives and self-support. There are now over four hundred children attending the school, and about the same number who perform duties of various kinds about the buildings and grounds. Two miles north of the main institution is a farm colony, where 185 boys are housed.

In politics Mr. Carroll is a stanch Democrat. He is a member of the Baptist church, is a Royal Arch and Scottish Rite Mason and an Odd Fellow.

CLARENCE W. OSBORNE, PH. D.

Clarence W. Osborne, of Union County, holds the record of having enjoyed a longer continuous service as county superintendent of schools, than any man who ever held that office in any county of the State. He was first elected in 1881, and has been re-elected regularly since, thus having served uninterruptedly for a little over twenty-four years. During this time he has attended as a member 47 conventions of the County Superintendents' State Association, and 24 meetings of the State Teachers' Association. He has conducted 24 County Institutes, and 270 teachers' examinations, and has attended 160 township and corporation commencements. His work is conceded by all to have been of the highest character and efficiency, and his reputation as an educator is not confined to his own county, where he has done so much to advance the cause of public education and raise the standard of efficiency in the teaching profession. He possesses a frank and genial disposition.

Prof. Osborne was born in Union County, June 5, 1853, being the son of William W. and Huldah (Tucker) Osborne. At the age of eighteen he entered Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, where he spent two years. He afterwards attended the National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, two years, where he graduated in the Commercial course and almost completed the work in the classical course. He taught four years in the district schools, and served one year as principal of the West College Corner school, at the end of which time he was elected County Superintendent as before stated. After coming into this office he matriculated in the National University of Chicago, fulfilling its conditions by correspondence, and receiving in due succession the degrees of A. B., A. M., and Ph. D. He has been honored by election, at different times, as secretary and president of the County Superintendents' State Association. He is a staunch Republican.

CHARLES DOWNING,

Secretary State Board of Agriculture.

Few men are better known throughout the State than Charles Downing, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. He has his office on the first floor of the State House, where he is always on duty, and where friends of the great industrial cause he represents are always welcome. The great personal popularity he enjoys has been earned by his kindliness of disposition, and attentiveness to the wants of those who have business with the office of the Board. His position is an important one, and no man could perform its duties more satisfactorily than Mr. Downing has done.

Mr. Downing was born in New York City, N. Y., August 7, 1857, and came to Greenfield, Indiana, when but eleven years of age. He was educated in the schools of New York and Greenfield, completing his school days in the latter city in 1873. Soon after this he was appointed deputy clerk of the Hancock Circuit Court, and served nine years. In 1882 he was elected clerk, and served four years. In 1890 he was again elected clerk and served another term of four years, at the end of which time he entered the practice of law in Greenfield. He served two years as Prosecuting Attorney, having been appointed by Governor Matthews to fill out an unexpired term. He was elected a member of the State Board of Agriculture in 1893, and re-elected from time to time until 1900, when he was elected Secretary of the Board, and this position he has held continuously since. Mr. Downing is also a member of the Board of Trustees of Purdue University, having been appointed in 1899. He still maintains his residence at Greenfield.

WILLIAM H. O'BRIEN,

Chairman Democratic State Central Committee.

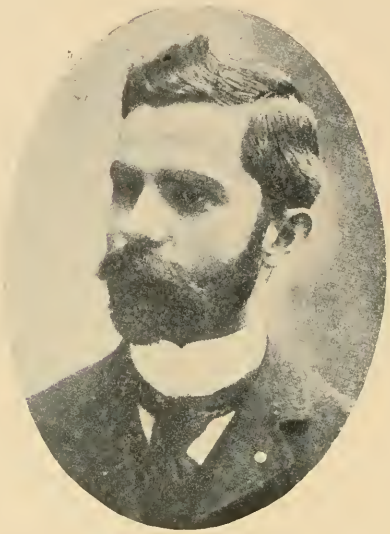
William H. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, is a banker by profession, and resides at Lawrenceburg. He was born in that thriving city August 22, 1855, the son of Cornelius O'Brien, a lawyer, and native of Kilkenny County, Ireland, and Harriett Jane Hunter, born in Lawrenceburg. He was educated in the schools of his native town, and went through the sophomore year at DePauw University.

Quiet of disposition, but thoughtful, conscientious and ever considerate of the rights of others, Mr. O'Brien represents the very best type of citizenship of the State. The confidence and esteem in which he is held by his close neighbors and fellow-citizens is attested by the fact that he has been elected Mayor of Lawrenceburg no fewer than five times, serving in all thirteen years.

In the fall of 1902 Mr. O'Brien was elected State Senator to represent the joint district composed of Dearborn, Franklin and Ohio counties. He served with great credit to himself, and with entire satisfaction to his constituency in the General Assemblies of 1903 and 1905.

Mr. O'Brien has been a lifelong Democrat, and a faithful worker for the success of his party. He was elected chairman of the State Central Committee January 8, 1904, and served through the disastrous campaign which resulted in his party's defeat in the fall. But this was a calamity—from the Democratic standpoint—that no man could avert. His work met with the entire approval of his party associates, even if a different outcome would have suited them better.

Mr. O'Brien was married to Miss Harriet Hunter, a native of Mexico, Missouri, on May 9, 1882.



EDWARD EVERETT NEAL.

Edward Everett Neal, of Noblesville, Indiana, is known and esteemed for his sterling qualities by citizens in every portion of the Hoosier commonwealth. He was born in Hamilton County, Indiana, and has maintained his residence there ever since. He worked hard to secure an education, and has risen steadily by his own efforts. The confidence and esteem in which he is held have been earned by the fairness, frankness and openness of his disposition, and his promptness in living up to every duty and obligation, whether of business, friendship or politics. He is a member of the Hamilton County bar, having received a legal education in the National University Law School of Washington, D. C. He is a Republican of the most ardent type, has helped fight the battles of his party in every campaign since he reached his majority, and is known as an eloquent and logical campaign orator. He has served as district and State secretary of the Lincoln League.

Mr. Neal was elected to the State Legislature in 1898 and again in 1900, and served with distinction in the sessions of 1899 and 1901.

Mr. Neal has served as official stenographer of the Twenty-fourth Judicial Circuit for some years and his experience in the courts render him peculiarly well adapted to perform the duties of the office to which he aspires, viz., Clerk of the Supreme Court. He sought the nomination for this office in 1902, but stepped aside on account of the candidacy for State Auditor of another citizen of his county.

Mr. Neal will again present his claims for the nomination for Clerk of the Supreme Court before the Republican convention of 1906, and his numerous friends all over the State are sanguine of his success.

Mr. Neal is also a successful newspaper man, being editor of the Hamilton County News, a stanch and influential Republican journal.

FRANCIS T. ROOTS.

Both in the matter of material prosperity, and for her fair renown among the cities of the State, Connersville, Indiana, owes much to the high abilities, sterling character, loyalty and success, of a single family.

In the early days of Connersville's history, it became the residence of Alanson Roots, a man of character, purpose and industry, who set about the task of making a success of life without bluster or ostentation. He was succeeded by Philander H. Roots, his son, who was a scholarly and accomplished gentleman, a public-spirited citizen, and a business man of very superior talents. He was a manufacturer of woolen goods, an inventor and a banker. He was a charter member of the First National Bank at Connersville, and was its President from 1872 to 1879. He was also one of the charter members of the Connersville Hydraulic Company, serving as its President from 1865 to 1870. He was one of the founders of the Second Presbyterian Church, serving the organization as trustee and elder till his death, which occurred in 1879. He left a very liberal fortune as an evidence of his success in business.

Francis T., the son of Philander H. Roots, was born in Connersville, Indiana, July 17, 1857, and represents the third generation of the family in Connersville. His portrait accompanies this sketch. He inherited both wealth and an honored family name, and to his great credit it can be said he has safeguarded and added additional accumulations to the one, and preserved inviolate the other. He has proven himself a man of breadth and talent, and his influence has not only impressed itself upon city and county, but has been felt in the affairs of the State. His education began in the city schools of Connersville, and was completed in the Chickering Institute at Cincinnati, Ohio, where he won numerous honors, and was also the valedictorian of his year. He at first prepared himself for practice of the law, but owing to the death of his father found it necessary to embark in active business life. Herein he has won a splendid success, and has proven his breadth and versatility by achievements along other lines, notably politics, at the same time. At the age of twenty-one he was elected to the highly responsible position of President of the First National Bank, a position which he filled with complete success. About the same time he was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the P. H. & F. M. Roots Co., and a little later became President of the Connersville Hydraulic Co. In addition to these enterprises, in which he has large holdings, he also holds important interests in the Connersville Buggy Co., the Connersville Furniture Co., the Natural Gas Co., the A. E. Barrows Insurance Co., the Triple Sign Co. and the Farmers and Merchants Trust Co., he being President and one of the principal founders of this latter institution, which, though but four years old, is one of the leading financial concerns of the city.

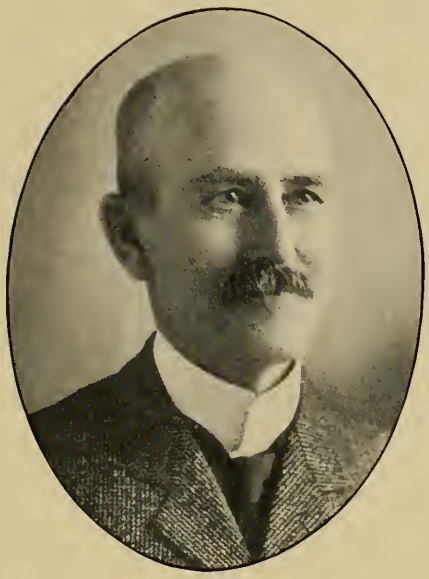
Mr. Roots has served twice as Vice-President of the Indiana State Board of Commerce, and was chairman of the committee that framed the call for the first monetary convention in Indianapolis. He was an alternate delegate to the convention at Minneapolis in 1902, when Gen. Harrison was nominated for president, and a delegate to the Chicago convention in 1904 when Roosevelt and Fairbanks were nominated. He was elected a Representative to the State Legislature in 1896 from the counties of Fayette and Henry, and re-elected in 1898 from Fayette and Wayne. He served in the Assemblies of 1897 and 1899, and during that time had the unprecedented honor of nominating two United States Senators, viz., Fairbanks and Beveridge. While in the Legislature he originated and secured the passage of many valuable measures, among them being the famous anti-junketing law which has saved the State many thousands of dollars, and has been copied by other States. He served as a member of Governor Durbin's military staff.

Mr. Roots' fame as an orator has long since o'erspread the bounds of his own State, and he has frequently been urged by his friends to try for high political honors. From a standpoint of unselfish devotion to the principles of the Republican party, and long and valuable service, both in party counsel and on the stump, he deserves highly, but his large and varied business interests have stood in the way of his entering into active competition for such honors. He has been urged in turn to make the race for Lieutenant-Governor, for Governor, and for Congress.

Mr. Roots is justly regarded as being one of the ablest financiers in the State, and he represents the best type of solid and safe business man. He is broad and liberal in his views, and has aided with his time and his money every public enterprise and worthy object in his city and community. He was one of the leading spirits in the establishment of the Fayette County Free Fair Association, and has served as its President from the first. He is likewise President of the Connersville Manufacturers' Club.

Mr. Roots was married in 1890 to Miss Sallie Heilman, daughter of Congressman Wm. Heilman, of the Evansville district. They have one son, Clarence S., now a rising young attorney, also located at Connersville.



JONCE MONYHAN.

Jonce Monyhan was born in Saltillo, in Washington County, Indiana, August 1, 1856. When four years of age his father moved to Leipsic, in Orange County, Indiana, and engaged in general merchandising. Jonce attended the public schools of his township until he became far enough advanced to enter Blue River Academy, which became his alma mater, as he attended that academy two years. He then engaged in business with his father, until the latter, wishing to retire from the active labors of a merchant, sold his interest in the store to Jonce, who conducted a profitable business until the year 1895.

Mr. Monyhan was married to Miss Belle Miller of Indianapolis, June 28, 1882, and they lived a happy life together until August 10, 1904, when death claimed Mrs. Monyhan. Two sons, Blish and Henry, survive the mother. The sudden death of his father in 1895 caused the shadows to fall dark and gloomy over Mr. Monyhan's life, and the old home and successful business lost their attractions, and the opportunity presenting itself, he disposed of all his interests at Leipsic and moved to Orleans.

In 1896 Mr. Monyhan was honored with the Republican nomination for the State Legislature from the districts composed of Orange and Crawford counties, and was elected by a splendid majority. He served with great credit to himself during the session of 1897.

Upon his return home and to the duties of a private citizen, Mr. Monyhan and his associates founded the Citizens' Bank of Orleans, which splendid institution speaks for itself. He was elected president of the bank and still holds this responsible position. He held the office of Trustee of North East Township before moving from Leipsic, and later was elected and served as a member of the Board of School Trustees of the town of Orleans.

Mr. Monyhan is a member of the Masonic fraternity and the order of Knights of Pythias, his standing in both orders being very high. He is a thirty-second degree Mason, a Knight Templar and a Shriner, and is grand vice-chancellor of the Grand Lodge, K. of P. of Indiana. He is also chairman of the executive council of the State Bankers' Association.

Mr. Monyhan is an avowed candidate for the nomination for the office of State Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican State convention. His many warm friends over the State feel confident of his success.

JOHN P. BROWN,

Secretary-Treasurer of the International Society of Arboriculture.

John P. Brown, residing at Connersville, Indiana, enjoys a national, in fact, an international reputation as an authority on arboriculture. For forty years he has devoted his time to a study of the forestry question in all its phases, including effects upon climate, rainfall and soil of modern methods of commercial deforestation, and the ultimate effects upon the people, and upon states and nations of the same destructive process. He is among those who early foresaw the effects upon manufacturing and other industries of the wanton waste of our natural forests, which a thousand years of human effort could not replace. But these lessons were easily learned. The question of reafforestation, and within a period to benefit during their lifetime those who promote it, furnished the great problem, for human selfishness tends to disregard the interests or even rights of posterity. It takes a philanthropist to plant a forest that can benefit only the second or third generation after his death. Hence the special effort made by Mr. Brown to find a species of forest tree that would be commercially valuable, and of sufficiently rapid growth to mature and yield a profit within the lifetime of the planter. This he found in the Catalpa speciosa, a native Indiana tree. Through lectures, magazine articles and personal correspondence he has induced individuals, corporations, railroad companies and states to plant millions of these trees, devoting hundreds of thousands of acres of land to their cultivation. This, of course, is but a branch of his forestry work, which has made his name familiar in almost every land. On every phase of the work he is acknowledged as an authority, and such are the demands upon his time that for several years he has traveled on an average of a thousand miles weekly, or fifty thousand miles per year, in the interests of the business. He organized the International Society of Arboriculture in 1896, the membership at the first being twenty. It has since increased to 3,500, every State of the Union, Mexico, Canada, all European countries, Japan, Korea, South Africa and the South American States being represented. Mr. Brown is Secretary and Treasurer of the Society. He is also editor of Arboriculture, the official organ of the society, which he established in 1902. It is a highly influential magazine, now in its fourth volume. He is also a life member of the Forestry Society of France, and corresponds for several foreign journals.

Mr. Brown was born January 19, 1842, at Rising Sun, Indiana. His father, Elbridge Gerry Brown, was a pioneer steamboat captain on western rivers. Our subject attended common schools, and afterward spent a year in Hanover College. He became a civil engineer, and continued his studies in the field, gradually developing his qualifications as a forestry engineer. He saw service in the Civil War, being a member of the Sixteenth Regiment, Indiana Volunteer Infantry. He is a Republican in politics. Prior to the organization of the present Forestry Bureau, he was employed for a time in the Washington Department of Agriculture, in forestry work. He afterward spent some time in the Interior Department, inspecting surveys in the land office.

Mr. Brown drafted and secured the passage in the Indiana Legislature of the Forestry Law of 1899, in the face of great opposition. The measure proved a most valuable one. Much of his time is now employed as a contracting forestry engineer.

Mr. Brown was married March 11, 1868, to Mary E. Stephens of Baldwin, Kansas. His family consists of his wife and ten children.

CHARLES E. SHIVELEY,

Supreme Chancellor of the Order of Knights of Pythias.

Hon. Charles E. Shiveley was born on a farm near Eaton, Ohio, July 8, 1853. At the age of eight years his parents removed to Miami County, Indiana. In 1868 he was placed in a Presbyterian boarding school at Wabash, where he remained for two years. In 1870 he removed with his parents to Cambridge City, Indiana. He attended college at Hanover, finishing his junior year in 1874, and left that institution with high honors. From Hanover College he began his law course at Cambridge City, and in 1875 was admitted to the Wayne County bar. He was appointed Deputy Prosecuting Attorney by Hon. D. W. Comstock, now a member of the Appellate Court of Indiana. In 1880 Mr. Shiveley was elected Prosecuting Attorney and took up his residence in the city of Richmond, where he has since resided. In 1882 he was re-elected Prosecutor for the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit. In 1884 he retired from that office with honor to himself and his constituents. He then devoted himself earnestly to the practice of his profession and with such a measure of success that he soon became known as one of the foremost lawyers of Eastern Indiana.

In 1894 he was elected Senator from Wayne County and held that office one term. As a member of the Indiana State Senate he was recognized as one of the leaders. During his first session he was chairman of the "steering committee," and at his second session in 1897 was elected president pro tempore of the Senate. Mr. Shiveley showed much skill as a parliamentarian and a ready and forceful debater. After retiring from the Senate, Governor Mount appointed him a member of the Board of Managers of the Indiana Reformatory, which position he held for five years, a part of which time he was president of the board. In 1900 Mr. Shiveley was prominently mentioned by the press of the State as a probable candidate for Governor, but on account of business reasons he declined to make the race.

In 1902, at San Francisco, he was elected supreme vice-chancellor of the order of Knights of Pythias, and in August, 1904, at Louisville, Kentucky, he was elected supreme chancellor, which position he now occupies. Both of these elections came to Mr. Shiveley without opposition. The Knights of Pythias now number about 650,000 men. As chief executive of this great organization Mr. Shiveley has shown much executive ability, and the order under his administration has attained the greatest growth and development in its history.

JAMES P. GOODRICH,

Chairman of the Republican State Committee.

James P. Goodrich, whose name has become familiar throughout the State on account of his leadership of one of the great political parties during two hard-fought campaigns, was born at Winchester, Randolph County, February 18, 1864, and being convinced that fate had made a good choice of residence for him, has maintained his home there ever since. He began his education in the high school at Winchester and after completing the work there entered DePauw University in 1883 and remained there two years. After reading law in the office of Hon. Enos L. Watson, of Winchester, for two years, he entered the active practice of his profession, which he has followed with marked success for seventeen years. He has also enjoyed and still enjoys, extensive and important business connections, being President of the People's Loan and Trust Co. of Winchester; holding interests in the Randolph County Bank and other banking institutions of the county, and is one of the trustees of Wabash College.

Mr. Goodrich has never held or sought public office. The highest distinction in this line, of which he is able to boast, is a membership on the School Board of Winchester for the past fourteen years. However his splendid abilities have not lacked recognition at the hands of the political party of his choice. He was elected Republican State committeeman from his district in 1898 and 1900, and in the fall of 1901 he was elected chairman of the State committee to fill out the unexpired term of Charles S. Henley, resigned. In January, 1902, he was elected for a full term, and in 1904 was re-elected. Under his leadership his party was victorious in the State campaign of 1902, and at the State and National election of 1904 all records were broken, the Republican plurality climbing within a few notches of the hundred thousand mark. While the sovereign people decide elections in this country, a great deal depends, nevertheless, upon the intelligent and fair presentation of issues, and tactful management and direction of the campaign. In his qualities as a leader Mr. Goodrich has set the mark high. He is modest and unassuming in manner, but his frankness and evident honesty of purpose impress themselves at once upon all with whom he comes in contact. But his political achievements are only a continuation of the story of his success in business and professional life.

JOHN W. KERN.

John W. Kern deserves to be classed among Indiana's most distinguished sons. While membership in the minority party has made it impossible for him to attain the high political honors for which his admiring and ever enthusiastic friends have pushed him forward during recent years, he has nevertheless made his impress upon the affairs of the State. An orator of marked ability, a deep thinker and logical reasoner, he finds it no difficulty to sway the public thought on questions of political or governmental interest or debate. No partisan adherent of either political organization in the State enjoys a greater personal popularity among his following.

John Worth Kern was born at the little village of Alto, in Howard County, Indiana, December 20, 1849, a son of Dr. Jacob H. and Nancy Liggett Kern. The father was a pioneer emigrant from Virginia, while the mother was a native of Ohio. In 1854, while John W. was but five years of age, his parents removed with him to Warren County, Iowa. Father and son returned in 1864, the faithful wife and mother having died in their far western home. After the return to Indiana, in order to attend the Indiana Normal School at Kokomo, he rode back and forth from his home each day on horseback, the distance being about five miles. He early cherished the ambition to become a public speaker, and it is told of him that upon his long and lonely rides he often rehearsed speeches to his faithful horse, making the woods ring with his oratory. Beginning at sixteen years of age he taught two terms of school, then entered the university at Ann Arbor, Michigan, graduating in the law in 1869. Returning to Kokomo, he immediately began the practice of his profession. When barely twenty-one years of age he was nominated by the Democrats of Howard county for the State Legislature. The county was normally Republican by over a thousand, and Kokomo city was also heavily Republican, but so effective was young Kern's canvass, and so popular did he prove himself to be, that he carried the city and made such inroads upon the majority of the dominant party in the county as to give his adversaries a thorough scare. He held the office of City Attorney twelve years under Republican administrations. In 1884 he was elected on the Democratic ticket to the office of reporter of the Supreme Court, and served his term of four years with the highest possible efficiency. Removing to Indianapolis at the beginning of his term, he has since made that city his home.

In 1892 Mr. Kern was elected to the State Senate to represent Marion County, and served in that high position with distinction. He was City Attorney of Indianapolis under Mayor Taggart from October, 1897, to October, 1901.

In 1900 Mr. Kern was made the Democratic nominee for Governor of Indiana, and he made a brilliant campaign, but the tide of battle was against Democracy, and he lost to his Republican opponent, Col. W. T. Durbin. Again in 1904 Mr. Kern found himself the choice of his party for the high office of Governor, and although he had not sought the nomination, he took the field with all the splendid ardor of his nature. A more remarkable campaign was never waged in the State, but in spite of all efforts the result was the most disastrous that ever overtook the Democratic party, and Mr. Kern went down in defeat with the rest of the ticket. But the battle was lost on national issues, as is proven by the fact that Mr. Kern ran far ahead of the vote on the national ticket. The majority against Parker for President was almost ten thousand greater than that against Kern for Governor. There is practically no doubt but that Mr. Kern could have had the Democratic nomination for Vice-President in 1904 had he not restrained his friends from presenting his candidacy before the St. Louis convention because he did not want to stand in the way of Thomas Taggart, who sought and finally won the chairmanship of the national committee.

Mr. Kern meets defeats and disappointments with cheerfulness and good humor, and counts it no sacrifice to stand aside to help a friend. Mr. Kern has been twice married, his first wife dying in October, 1884. His second marriage was to Miss Araminta Cooper, daughter of Dr. William Cooper, of Kokomo, in December, 1885. He takes great pride in his three children. The eldest, Miss Julia, is a daughter of his first marriage. The other two are boys, John W., Jr., born in 1900, and William Cooper Kern, born in 1903.

WARREN G. SAYRE.

Warren Grover Sayre has been a prominent figure in the governmental affairs of Indiana for more than a quarter of a century. A practical and accomplished lawyer, an unerring judge of human nature, a close student of current events and social and governmental tendencies, a speaker and debater of superior talent and readiness, he never fails to make his impress in forum or committee, in open campaign, or in personal encounter. No man in Indiana possesses a broader or more comprehensive knowledge of the men and affairs of the State, and the correctness of his views upon questions which from time to time form issues to divide the people, and his boldness and fearlessness in expressing them, have made him a recognized leader of thought in the State. In short he has been a most useful citizen and servant of the commonwealth, and he is still only in his prime.

Mr. Sayre was born in Wabash County, Indiana, July 29, 1844, and he has made that county his home ever since. He is the son of Daniel and Mary Newhall Grover Sayre, his father having represented Wabash County in the General Assembly of 1871. He attended the schools of Wabash and was graduated from Union College, Scheneetady, New York. He was married in 1865 to Martha J. Bronk, of Albany, New York, and has one son, Daniel Bronk Sayre, born February 4, 1868.

Mr. Sayre was elected to the State Senate in 1880, and at the close of his term was elected a member of the House of Representatives where he has served five sessions since. In 1886 he was elected Speaker, and performed the duties of the office ably and acceptably. In 1889 President Harrison appointed him a member of the Cherokee Commission, to buy Oklahoma Territory from the Indians, the task requiring four years.

Mr. Sayre is a Republican in politics, and has aided the party in the State through many a hard-fought battle.

JOSEPH E. BELL.

Joseph E. Bell was born November 28, 1865, in Union County, Indiana. His early life was spent working upon the farm.

He attended the high school at Liberty, Indiana, and afterwards the Holbrook Normal School at Lebanon, Ohio. At nineteen years of age he began teaching in the common schools of Union County, which he followed for two years, working upon the farm during vacation.

In 1886 he entered the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, taking a course in the law department, from which he graduated in June, 1888.

In August of that year he located in the city of Indianapolis to begin the practice of law. General Harrison was then a candidate for President and the campaign was at its height. Being a stanch Democrat, Mr. Bell at once became active in local politics, associating himself with the Hon. Thomas Taggart, who was then chairman of the Democratic county committee of Marion County. The Indiana Legislature elected that year was Democratic by a small majority, and when the General Assembly of 1889 met Mr. Bell was appointed reading clerk of the House of Representatives.

After the adjournment Mr. Bell began the practice of law and was successful from the beginning. In 1893 he was appointed to the position of assistant city attorney of the city of Indianapolis under the administration of the Hon. Thomas L. Sullivan as Mayor. When the Hon. Thomas Taggart was elected Mayor in 1895 Mr. Bell was appointed to the position of first assistant city attorney and continued in that office through Mayor Taggart's three administrations. During this time Mr. Bell had charge of the city's litigation, having conducted practically all of the trials in which the city was engaged during those six years. During this time he gained the reputation of being an excellent trial lawyer.

Mr. Bell has always been active in the politics of the city, county and State, being one of the close advisers of the Hon. Thomas Taggart, chairman of the national Democratic committee, and was a delegate to the national Democratic convention at St. Louis in 1904. He is now associated in the practice of law with the Hon. John W. Kern, their offices being in the State Life Building.

Mr. Bell is a man of splendid ability, of tireless energy, and is held in high esteem by all who know him.

He was married in 1888 to Miss Anna L. Miller of Preble County, Ohio.

JAMES E. WATSON,

Member of Congress from Sixth Indiana District.

James E. Watson, one of the most widely known of the thirteen members of Congress from Indiana, was born in Winchester, Randolph County, November 2, 1864. He began his education in the Winchester High School, from which he graduated at the age of 17. He immediately entered DePauw University, devoting himself to diligent study for four years, at the end of which time he returned to Winchester and began reading law in the office of Watson & Engle. He was admitted to the bar in 1886, and his success in the law since then has been very pronounced. Possessing superior natural abilities as a thinker and reasoner, he is also an orator of a high grade of talent; and being ready in repartee and wit, his adaptability to the exigencies of debate is complete. These talents have stood him equally well in hand in the realm of politics and statesmanship, wherein even greater achievements have been scored.

Mr. Watson is a member of several of the leading fraternal orders, in some of which high honors have been conferred upon him. Of the Knights of Pythias he served one term as Grand Chancellor, and he also served as a representative to the Supreme Lodge of the order.

In 1893 Mr. Watson removed to Rushville, Indiana, and his political career may be said to have begun soon afterward. In 1894 he contested for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State, and was second in a list of strong candidates before the convention. In the fall of the same year he was elected a member of Congress, defeating the veteran Democrat, Hon. Wm. S. Holman, in a memorable contest. In 1896 he lost the nomination for re-election to Hon. Henry U. Johnson, a change in their districts having made the two men rivals. Johnson's victory was by a scratch, however, and when the time for another nomination came around in 1898, he was not a candidate. Mr. Watson was nominated without opposition, and enjoyed similar experiences in 1900, 1902 and 1904, being successful in the election which followed in each instance. Meanwhile he has made a record in Congress which has fully justified the high estimation in which his friends have always held him. He is rated as the most eloquent and forceful speaker in the House of Representatives, and wields an influence in National legislation scarcely second to any. He is a member of the important Ways and Means Committee, and is in line for further promotion.

THOMAS B. MILLIKAN.

Thomas B. Millikan was born in Henry County, Indiana, March 28, 1854, being the son of John R. and Martha Koons Millikan. The father was a farmer and banker, having served as President of the Citizens' State Bank of New Castle from 1873 till the date of his death in 1896. During this time he served two terms as Representative from Henry County in the State Legislature. The natural bent and aptitude of his son, Thomas B., for the banking business are easily accounted for.

Thomas B. Millikan received his education in the common schools of Henry County, the New Castle High School and the Holbrook Normal, at Lebanon, Ohio. His boyhood days were spent upon the farm.

At the age of nineteen Mr. Millikan accepted a place in the Citizens' State Bank at New Castle as assistant cashier, and he has held this position continuously since, a period of thirty-two years. His careful study of all financial problems and his tact and caution in the performance of his responsible duties not only made him one of the most trusted advisers to the higher officers of the institution, but contributed largely to the notable prosperity of the bank. His work as a successful though safe and conservative financier has made his name familiar throughout the State.

Mr. Millikan was State Bank Examiner eight years, serving from 1892 to 1900, under State Auditors A. C. Daily and W. H. Hart, successively. He was chosen to represent Hon. Yates Nebeker, who was appointed Treasurer of the United States by President Harrison to succeed Hon. J. N. Huston, resigned. The duties of the position occupied about three months of Mr. Millikan's time, the most of which was devoted to counting money at the National Treasury at Washington.

His experience and training have been such as to qualify him well for the office of State Treasurer, to which Mr. Millikan is known to aspire and for which his friends have pressed his claims enthusiastically. He was in the race for the Republican nomination in 1902, and was second on the list when the successful candidate reached the home-plate with only three and one-half votes to spare. His name is very prominent among the assured contestants for the honor in 1906.

Mr. Millikan is an ardent Republican and always a worker for his party's interests. He has been a member of the Henry County Committee continuously for the last twenty-six years.

He was married in 1877 to Miss Alice Peed, and this happy companionship lasted until July 28, 1902, when death claimed the faithful wife. Three children were born to bless the union, and all survive.

Seven hundred dollars is the minimum salary that can be paid the Recorder in any county.
When the fees collected by the Recorder exceed his salary, he is entitled to 30 per cent of such excess fees.

TERMS OF OFFICE AND MANNER OF FIXING SALARIES OF COUNTY OFFICERS.

The Clerk, Auditor, Recorder and Assessor each serves for a term of four years, with the restriction that no such officer may serve more than eight years in any twelve. The Treasurer, Sheriff, Coroner and Surveyor each serves two years, but can not hold the office more than four years in any six.

The salaries of Clerk, Auditor, Recorder, Treasurer, Sheriff, and Assessor are graded according to population of the counties. (See last preceding table.) Coroner and Surveyor receive fees, except that in counties of 100,000 population and over Coroners receive a salary of $3,000, and in counties having a population of 150,000 or more, Surveyors receive $2,400 per year.

In addition to the above, each county has a County Council, consisting of seven members, four of whom are elected by districts, and the other three as "councilmen-at-large," by the voters of the whole county. Terms of office of County Councilmen, four years. Their salaries are graded by population of counties as follows: In counties having a population of 35,000 and less, the Councilmen receive salaries of $10 per annum each; in counties having more than 35,000 population and less than 75,000, $15 per annum each; in counties having more than 75,000, the Councilmen receive $25 per annum each.

Each county has a Board of Commissioners, consisting of three members. Their terms are three years each, and their salaries are graded according to population of the counties. (See last preceding table.)

TERMS AND COMPENSATION OF TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

Township Trustees are elected for a period of four years, and are not allowed to serve more than four years in any eight. They receive $2.00 per day while actually employed with the business of the township. However, in townships having a population of 25,000 to 75,000, Trustees are given a salary of $1,000; in townships having 75,500 to 100,000, $1,800; in townships of 100,000 and over, Trustees receive $2,500.

Township Assessors are elected for a term of four years, with no restriction as to re-election. In townships having a population of less than 5,000, the Assessor receives $2.50 per day for actual time devoted to the work of the office; in townships having a population of 5,000, the Assessor receives a salary of $200, and $25 per year additional for each 1,000 or fraction thereof of population above 5,000, up to 20,000. If the population is above 20,000 and under 75,000, the Assessor's salary is not less than $800 and not more than $1,500, to be determined by the Board of County Commissioners. If the population is 75,000 and less than 100,000, the Assessor's salary is $1,800; if the population is over 100,000, then the salary is $2,500.

Each township has an Advisory Board, consisting of three members. The members are elected for terms of four years, and the law prescribes that if the members of the Board desire compensation for their services to the township they may, while making the levy for the township, add a sum not exceeding $5 for the services of each member during the year for which the levy is made. The annual meeting of the Board is held on the first Tuesday in September.

A competent number of Justices of the Peace are elected for each township, the number being regulated by the Board of County Commissioners under certain restrictions. For instance, the number must not exceed two for each township, one additional for each incorporated town, and one additional for each incorporated city. There shall be not more than five in any township in which there is a city of 100,000 or more. After election Justices of the Peace are commissioned by the Governor. Term of office, four years. In townships in which there are cities of 100,000 population or more, Justices of the Peace receive salaries of $2,000 per annum. In other townships fees only.

A number of Constables are elected in each township equal to the whole number of Justices of the Peace. Term, four years. Compensation, fees.

The Legislature of 1905 changed the time of electing Road Supervisors to the second Saturday after the first Monday in December of odd years.

COMPLETE DIRECTORY OF TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES, WITH POSTOFFICE ADDRESSES AND POLITICS.

Term of office of Township Trustee, four years, and no person is allowed to hold the office more than four years in any period of eight years. For compensation of Trustees, see page 245.

All Trustees now in office were elected in November, 1904; entered upon their terms January 1, 1905, and will serve till January 1, 1909.

HOW TO GET MARRIED.

Under the new marriage law passed by the Indiana Legislature of 1905, a marriage license will not be issued to any person, male or female, who is an imbecile, of unsound mind, or epileptic, or to any person who is afflicted with a transmissible disease, or who is under the influence of an intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug at the time of making application. And license will not be issued to any male who is or has been within five years an inmate of any poorhouse or home for indigent persons, unless he can show that the cause of such condition has been removed, and that he is able to support a family.

The application for a marriage license must contain a statement of the full Christian and surname, color, occupation, birthplace, residence and age of each of the parties, and full Christian and surnames, residence, color, occupation and birthplace of their parents, including the maiden name of the mother, and a statement showing whether the marriage contemplated is the first, second or other marriage, and such other facts as may be necessary to determine whether any legal impediments to the proposed marriage exist.

For securing a marriage license by any false statement, pretense or misrepresentation, a penalty not exceeding $500 may be imposed. A minister or other person who solemnizes an illegal marriage lays himself liable to the same penalty. A clerk who issues a license contrary to the provisions of the law may be fined $25 to $100.

If persons resident of this State, in order to evade the provisions of the law, go into another State and get married, with the intention of returning to live in this State, and do so return, they lay themselves liable to a penalty not exceeding $500, and their marriage is void—providing this particular provision of the law is constitutional, which is doubtful.

Origin of the Nickname "Hoosier."

The origin of the nickname "Hoosier," as applied to Indiana, and to citizens of the state, is not known. The derivation most commonly accepted is from "Who's yer?" the crude salutation of the early settlers to unknown travelers coming to their cabins at night.

Other theories are advanced. One is that the name originated in New Orleans in the early days when the surplus produce of Indiana farms was carried down the Mississippi in flat boats. The men in charge of these boats congregated in large numbers on the levee at New Orleans, and fights between themselves and other flat boat men were frequent. The Indiana men had a habit of ordering others to "hush up" when their talk became objectionable or too loud, and if the offender didn't hush up when bidden, he was sometimes silenced by Indiana knuckles and brawn. Hence Indianians were called "hushers", a word that found an easy transition to Hoosiers.

Another story is that the name originated in Kentucky at the close of a lecture in which a heroic regiment of French Huzzars was highly praised. A lot of Indiana men were there, and were participants in a free fight which followed the lecture program. One of them, still enthused over the narrative of the brave deeds of the French soldiers, shouted out that he and his friends were regular Huzzars. The name stuck to the Indiana men, and was soon converted into Hoosiers.

Tippecanoe Battle Ground.

The Battle of Tippecanoe, fought near the confluence of the Wabash and Tippecanoe rivers, a few miles north of the present city of Lafayette, was the largest and most celebrated armed conflict ever waged on the soil of the State of Indiana. It took place in the early morning of November 7, 1811, and was really the first shot fired in the War of 1812. General William Henry Harrison commanded the little army of Americans, while the Indians were led by the doughty chieftain, Tecumseh. On the American side the battle was fought largely by Indiana men. In General Harrison's army were two hundred and fifty regulars, sixty Kentuckians, and six hundred Indianans. The loss consisted of thirty-seven killed, and one hundred and fifty-one wounded, of whom fifteen afterward died from the effects of their injuries. The Indians were thoroughly routed, and the designs of Tecumseh completely foiled. The result was very important. If the battle had not been fought, or if the Indians had won it, enabling Tecumseh to accomplish his designs, the success of the Americans in the War of 1812 might have been jeopardized.

General Tipton bought the land on which the battle was fought, and on November 7, 1836, deeded it to the State of Indiana, to be preserved as a public park for all time to come. An effort is being made to have a monument erected on this historic spot.

Of such significance was the Battle of Tippecanoe, that it became the unwritten law of the State in its early history, that when new counties were formed, they should be named after men who fought in the battle. Among the counties so named are White, Wells, Tipton, Parke, Bartholomew, Spencer, Owen, Daviess, Dubois, Floyd, Warrick and Harrison.

The greatest political meeting ever held in the State took place at the Tippecanoe Battleground in 1840, when General

THE BATTLE GROUND OF TIPPECANOE. AT BATTLE GROUND, NEAR LAFAYETTE, INDIANA.

William Henry Harrison, the "Hero of Tippecanoe," was a candidate for President. Opposed to General Harrison was Martin Van Buren. This was known as a singing, as well as a "hard cider" campaign. Below we reproduce a stanza from each of the two most popular songs of the Harrison adherents:

OLD TIPPECANOE.

(Air: Old Rosin De Bow.)

"Hurrah for the log cabin, chief of our joys;
For the old Indian fighter, hurrah!
Hurrah! And from mountain to valley the voice
Of the people re-echo hurrah!
Then come to the ballot-box, boys, come along,
He who never lost battle for you.
Let us down with oppression and tyranny's throng,
And up with Old Tippecanoe."

TIPPECANOE AND TYLER, TOO.

(Air: Little Pig's Tail.)

"Let them talk about hard cider, cider, cider,
And log cabins too,
'Twill only help to speed the ball,
For Tippecanoe and Tyler, too,
For Tippecanoe and Tyler, too,
Tippecanoe and Tyler, too.
And with them we'll beat Little Van,
Van, Van, he's a used-up-man
And with them we'll beat Little Van."

(The author is indebted to Hon. Alva O. Reser of Lafayette, for most of the data for this sketch.)

THE GRAVE OF NANCY HANKS LINCOLN.

AT LINCOLN CITY, INDIANA.

The Grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln.

A sacred spot on Indiana soil is the grave of Nancy Hanks, the mother of Abraham Lincoln. It is located near the little town of Lincoln City, in Spencer County, and a beautiful but unostentatious monument marks the site. The grave, and twenty-one acres of land surrounding it, are a public reservation, owned by the State, to be held in perpetuity for the benefit of patriotic citizens who revere the name of our first martyred President, and honor the memory of his sainted mother. The ground was donated to the State by Spencer County, and the monument was erected with funds raised by popular subscription. The care of the grave, and beautification of the grounds, are entrusted to the Nancy Hanks Lincoln Memorial Association, a self-perpetuating body composed of one representative each from the Grand Army of the Republic, The Women's Relief Corps, The Loyal Legion and The Sons of Veterans, and the Governor of the State, who is chairman.

About one-half mile from the little cemetery in which Nancy Hanks Lincoln found a last resting place, stands the "Lincoln Tree," which marks the spot where stood the humble cabin home of the Lincolns during their residence in Indiana. They had moved there from Kentucky to escape an epidemic of "milk sickness," which had attained almost to the proportions of a scourge in their native State. Here young Abraham spent a part of his boyhood days, and suffered his first great grief, caused by the death of his mother.

Squirrels.	August 1 of any year to January 1 of next succeeding year.	January 1 to August 1.	$10.

GAME LAWS OF THE STATE IN A NUTSHELL—Continued.

Game.	Open Season.	Closed Season.	Fine for Violation.
Woodcock.		Not allowed to sell between January 1 and July 1.	$1.
All game except wild duck and other water fowls.		October 1 to November 10.	$5 to $50.
Fish (in streams and ponds).	All the year, where hook and line only are used.	None.
Fish (in inland lakes, except private ponds).	May 15 of any year to March 20 of succeeding year.	March 20 to May 15. Not allowed to sell any pike, pickerel, wall-eyed pike, perch, blue gills, black bass, green bass or rock bass, caught in any waters of the State at any time.	$10 to $25.

SCRAPS OF LEGAL INFORMATION FOR GUIDANCE OF HUNTERS AND FISHERMEN.

The law offers no protection to the following birds: English or European house sparrows, crows, hawks, or other birds of prey; the anatidæ, commonly called swans, geese, brant, river and sea duck; the raillidæ, commonly known as rails, coots, mudhens and gallilunes; the linicolæ, commonly known as shore birds, plovers, surf birds, snipe, sandpipers, tattlers, and curlews.

Whoever hunts or shoots wild birds, rabbits, or any kind of game with firearms on Sunday may, on conviction, be fined in any sum from $1.00 to $50.00.

Whoever hunts with dog or ferrets, or shoots with any kind of firearms upon any land without first securing consent of the owner or tenant thereof, may be fined not less than $10 nor more than $25.

Whoever, while hunting on lands of another, carelessly or wantonly injures any live stock or property, real or personal, of any person, may be fined an amount not less than equal to the value of the property destroyed, and not more than double the value of property so destroyed or amount of injury done.

It is unlawful for any person to hunt anywhere within the State, except in the township wherein he resides, without first procuring a license so to do. This license must be procured from the Commissioner of Fisheries and Game, and costs a fee of $1.00 per year. Such license when issued must have attached to it a photograph of the holder, and contain a description of his age, height, weight, color of hair and of eyes, etc. The holder of such license must carry it with him for purpose of exhibiting it on demand while hunting.

Any person not a resident of the State desiring to hunt anywhere in the State, is required to secure a license of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of any county. He must accompany his application with a statement under oath of his name, age, occupation, and place of residence, and pay a fee of $15.50. The license when issued must have attached thereto the photograph of the holder. Any such licensee is allowed to take from the State 24 birds of all kinds killed by himself, but they must be carried openly for inspection together with the license. Fine for violation, $25.00 to $50.00, to which may be added imprisonment for 30 to 60 days.

Fish are not allowed to be taken with seines, nets, spears, or traps, and persons may be fined $5.00 to $200, for having such appliances in their possession. This does not apply, however, when such appliances are used for taking fish in Lake Michigan, the Ohio River, or the Wabash River in so far as those bodies of water constitute boundary lines. Nor do these restrictions apply to owners of private ponds who keep a seine for use in such ponds only, nor to minnow traps or seines.

Any person who shoots fish in any of the waters of the State lays himself liable to a fine of $5.00 to $50.00 for each offense. For using dynamite or other explosives the fine is $250 to $1,000, and imprisonment 30 days to one year.

Railroad and express companies, or other common carriers, or individuals, are forbidden to transport or carry game or fish of any kind out of the State.

BROWN COUNTY JAIL, NASHVILLE, IND.

This is probably the most primitive county building of any kind in Indiana. Perhaps if the people of Brown County had more use for a jail they would build a more modern one. At the date of the jail census, October 31, 1904, the Brown County jail held no prisoner, and during the entire year ending upon that date there had been but seven incarcerations, and two of these were tramps.

DECATUR COUNTY COURTHOUSE, GREENSBURG.

SHOWING MAPLE TREE GROWING IN TOWER.

This tree is about fifteen feet high, six inches in diameter of trunk, and has been growing there for twenty years. It is supposed to have started from a seed dropped in a crevice between the stones, but what the roots now feed upon, or how the tree manages to hold onto its perilous position through storm and wind is a mystery, and no matter how dry the weather, its foliage remains as green as that of other trees more naturally situated. The tower on which it grows is 134 feet high.

Geological Sketch of Indiana.

(By W. S. Blatchley, State Geologist.)

Periods of Geological Time.

The surface rocks of Indiana represent five great periods of geological time. These, named in the order of their age, are the Lower Silurian, Upper Silurian, Devonian, Lower Carboniferous and Carboniferous.

The Cincinnati Uplift.

At one time the entire area of what is now known as Indiana was covered by a great ocean which stretched far away to the southwest, while to the north and northeast it extended beyond the present sites of the Great Lakes. In what is known as Lower Silurian time, an upheaval, caused by some subterranean force, brought above the sea a large island of Lower Silurian rock, which, ever since, has been dry land. The upheaval was greatest over the point where Cincinnati, Ohio, is now located, and the "Cincinnati Uplift" is the name given by geologists to the island. The main portion of that island comprised the southwestern corner of what is now Ohio and a part of northeastern Kentucky. It also included a small portion of what is now Indiana, and formed the first and oldest portion of the surface of our State. Belonging to this Lower Silurian area is a part or all of the surface of the following counties: Wayne, Union, Fayette, Franklin, Dearborn, Ripley, Ohio, Switzerland and Jefferson. The exposed rocks which form the surface of these counties are chiefly blue limestone shales, which are interbedded with a highly fossiliferous limestone. While the drift covers all of this area, it is everywhere quite thin, and in the valleys and the beds of the streams the surface rocks are, in many places exposed.

THE GAS AND OIL FIELDS.

In time, by another upheaval, there was added to this island in southeastern Indiana a large area of the present State. The rocks so added formed what is known as the Niagara limestone of the Upper Silurian period. It comprised a long peninsula-like strip of land whose general trend was northwest and southeast. It is broadest in the northern portion and forms the surface rocks of all or part of the following counties: White, Cass, Miami, Wabash, Huntington, Wells, Adams, Jay, Blackford, Grant, Howard, Tipton, Madison, Delaware, Randolph, Wayne, Henry, Hancock, Hamilton, Rush, Fayette, Decatur, Ripley, Jennings and Jefferson.

It is in this area that the principal gas and oil fields of the State are found. Bores have been sunk through the Niagara or Upper Silurian, and the upper part of the Lower Silurian into what is know as the Trenton limestone. When the silt and mud from which this limestone was formed was first deposited in the sea, there was buried in it myriads of low forms of animals and plants. These were shut off from the air by the water above them and by mud and other materials, and so did not decay, but underwent a slow process of distillation and, in the course of thousands of years, were changed into the oil. From this oil a volatile natural gas arose and entered the porous parts of the Trenton limestone. In time man sunk his drill holes to this stone and piped off the gas and burned it as fuel. Since 1891 he has also removed from the Trenton limestone in Indiana 66,453,785 barrels of petroleum or crude oil, which sold for $54,884,941, or an average of nearly four millions of dollars per year. In 1904, this oil was the most valuable natural resource of the State, there being produced during that year 11,281,030 barrels, valued at $12,127,107.

Neither oil nor gas is being formed beneath the surface of Indiana at the present time, and we are, therefore, drawing upon a stored product, which can not be replaced when exhausted.

The Devonian Epoch.

After the Upper Silurian period, the rocks of the so-called Devonian epoch were laid down in the ocean, and in time upheaved. They comprise an irregular strip eight to forty-five miles in width, which lies along the western edge of the Niagara limestone, from the Ohio River near Jeffersonville, to a point near Rensselaer, Jasper County, and form the surface of the following counties: Clark, Scott, Jefferson, Jennings, Jackson, Bartholomew, Decatur, Rush, Shelby, Johnson, Marion, Hancock, Hamilton, Boone, Clinton, Tipton, Carroll, Cass, Tippecanoe, White and Jasper. The Devonian rocks are made up, for the most part, of limestones and black shales. The latter are often mistaken for coal. They contain some oil, and will burn for a short time, but are of no value as a fuel. From the limestones of this period what is known as hydraulic, or natural rock cement, is made in the southern part of the State.

The Lower Carboniferous Epoch.

Following the Devonian period came that of the Lower Carboniferous. The rocks of this epoch are comprised of what is known as knobstone, or sand shales, and the Lower Carboniferous limestones. They form the surface over a strip of territory 40 miles or more in width, lying between the western edge of the Devonian and the eastern edge of the Carboniferous rocks, and extending from the Ohio River, near New Albany, in a northwesterly direction to the Illinois line in Benton and Newton counties. The following counties, therefore, lie either partly or wholly within this Lower Carboniferous area: Benton, Warren, Tippecanoe, Fountain, Montgomery, Boone, Hendricks, Putnam, Owen, Morgan, Johnson, Bartholomew, Brown, Monroe, Greene, Lawrence, Jackson, Scott, Washington, Orange, Crawford, Perry, Harrison, Floyd and Clark.

Building Stones and Caves.

Two features of this Lower Carboniferous area are worthy of especial note. First, is the Bedford oolitic limestone, which is noted as the finest building limestone in the United States.

It is composed of the globular shells of minute one-celled animals, which were deposited in untold myriads in the sea waters of the time. The shells or cell walls of these animals were composed of a very pure form of carbonate of lime, and when they died and sank on the old sea bottoms they were cemented together by the same material. Under the lens they resemble a mass of fish eggs soldered together, hence the name "oolitic," which means "like an egg." The Bedford limestone is noted among architects for its strength and durability, and for the ease with which it may be sawed or carved into any desired form.

Second, it is among these Lower Carboniferous rocks of southwestern Indiana that we find the noted caves of the State. These were formed in the limestone by the erosion of underground waters. Some of them possess great vaulted rooms, deep pits, high waterfalls and streams of water large enough to allow the ready passage of a boat. All of these caves are due to the action of water. During the ages which have elapsed since the limestone was raised above the sea, it has carved every room and passage in these caves, and has formed, by solution and evaporation, the wonderful stalactites and other formations which decorate the walls and ceilings of their rooms. The largest and most noted of these caves is that known as "Wyandotte," in Crawford County, which excels in beauty the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky. It contains nearly five miles of subterranean passages, and the largest underground rooms known to man.

CARBONIFEROUS AREA AND THE COAL FIELDS.

The newest portion of Indiana comprises what is known as the Carboniferous area, in the western and southwestern portion of the State. Nearly 7,500 square miles belong to this area, which comprises the surface of the following counties: Vermillion, Parke, Vigo, Clay, Sullivan Knox, Daviess, Gibson, Pike, Dubois, Posey, Vanderburgh, Warrick and Spencer. The Carboniferous area thus has a maximum length from north to south of about 200 miles and a maximum width from east to west of about 100 miles, being narrow to the north and broad toward the south. It is within this area that there occur those five great veins of coal which forms today the chief mineral wealth of our State, and those vast beds of overlying shale which, in recent years, have come to be used for so many varied products. In the year 1904 there was mined 9,872,404 tons of coal, valued at nearly ten millions of dollars, and it is estimated that eight billions of tons of workable coal occur beneath the surface of this portion of our State.

Work of the Glacier.

In addition to the area mentioned the three northern tiers of counties in the State are so deeply covered with the drift that the character of their surface rocks is not known, except where deep bores have been sunk in search of oil or gas. All of these bores have, however, shown the underlying rocks to belong to one of the five great geological periods heretofore mentioned. The so-called "drift" which covers all the rocks of this region of the State, and nearly three-fourths of its entire area, was brought from the north thousands of years ago by a great moving mass of ice, and deposited where it now lies. This ice mass was known as a glacier, and as it moved slowly southward, great masses of partly decayed rock and clay from hillsides and jutting cliffs, rolled down upon it and were carried on to drop hundreds of miles from their parent ledges.

All the so-called "boulders" and the drift soils of northern and central Indiana were thus deposited where they now lie. The level and more fertile counties of the State lie within the drift covered area, and its southern limit marks practically the boundary of the great corn and wheat producing portion of the State. But few of the present inhabitants of Indiana realize how much they owe to this glacial invasion of our domain in the distant past. It not only determined the character of the soil, the contour of the country and the minor lines of drainage, but in many other ways it had to do with the pleasure, the health and the prosperity of the present population.

Indiana Farm Statistics.

ACCORDING to the Census of 1900, there are 221,897 farms in Indiana. These farms contain 21,619,623 acres, of which 16,680,358 are improved and 4,939,265 unimproved. The average size of farms for the state is 97.4 acres.

A "farm" as defined by the Twelfth Census, includes all the land under one management, the house in which the farmer resides, and all other buildings used by him in connection with his farming operations.

The value of the farms in 1900 was $841,735,340. Of this amount $154,101,880, or 18.3 per cent represents the value of buildings and $687,633,460, or 81.7 per cent, the value of land and improvements other than buildings.

On the same date the value of farm implements and machinery was $27,330,370, and of live stock on farms, $109,550,761.

Adding these different values gives $978,616,471, the total value of farm property, which is far from being an inconsiderable portion of the entire wealth of the state.

In the last ten years the total value of farm property increased $109,295,684. The increase in the value of land, improvements, and buildings was $86,946,230, or 11.5 per cent; in that of implements and machinery, $6,158,115, or 29.1 per cent; and in that of live stock, $16,189,339, or 17.3 per cent.

The value of farm products for 1899 exceeds that reported for 1889 by $109,690,934, or 115.8 per cent.

There are in the United States, 5,739,657 farms; 4,970,129 of these are operated by white farmers; 746,717 by negroes; 19,910 by Indians; 1,842 by Chinese; and 570 by Japanese.

In Indiana the white farm operators number 220,835; negro, 1,043; Indian, 19. Total, 221,897.

The total value of farm property in the United States, including land, improvements and buildings, implements, machinery and live stock, is $20,514,001,338. This is according to the Census of 1900. In 1890 the total value of farm property was $15,982,267,689. The increase in the wealth of the farmers of the United States in ten years, therefore, was over Four and a half Billion Dollars.

The gain in wealth of Indiana farmers during the same period, was $109,293,684.

The average value per farm of farm property in the United States, is $3,574.

In Indiana the average value per farm of farm property, is $4,410. In Ohio it is $4,333; in Illinois, $7,588; in Michigan, $3,396; in Kentucky, $1,712. The lowest average values are in the Southern States. In Mississippi the average is $925; in South Carolina, $989; in North Carolina, $1,041: in Georgia, $1,016; in Alabama, $804.

Hay and forage crops occupied 2,442,414 acres, and yielded 3,470,378 tons, valued at $20,227,197.

There were 8,219 acres in tobacco, supplying a yield of 6,882,470 pounds, worth $445,658.

Six hundred and forty pounds of hops, worth $52, were raised.

There were 179,576 gallons of maple syrup, valued at $161,935; 51,900 pounds of maple sugar, valued at $4,372.

There were 7,955 acres of sorghum cane, yielding 2,569 tons, and valued at $6,750. This was represented as having been sold as cane. There were produced 579,061 gallons of sorghum syrup, valued at $186,306.

There were 5,041 acres of grape vines, yielding 186,514 centals of grapes, valued at $350,304. This includes value of raisins, wine, etc.

Eight hundred and seventy-nine acres were devoted to the raising of peppermint, with a result of 22,380 pounds produced, valued at $19,557. There were 22 acres of willows, producing 111 tons, worth $2,224.

Acreages and value of other crops were given as follows:

Small Fruits, acres, 13,115; value, $1,113,527.

Flowers and Foliage plants, acres, 174; value, $400,730.

Vegetable and other seeds, acres, 79; value, $8,502.

Nursery Products, acres, 1,646; value, $254,893.

Forest Products, value, $5,235,459.

Miscellaneous Crops, acres, 395; value, $16,599.

Total acreage af crops in Indiana in 1899, 11,407,798. Total value of crops, $122,502,274.

The average values per acre of the various crops were as follows: Flowers and plants, $2,303; nursery products, $155; onions, $128; vegetable and other seeds, $108; willows, $101; small fruits, $85; grapes, $69; tobacco, $54; miscellaneous vegetables, $46; sweet potatoes, $39; Irish potatoes, $29; peppermint, $22; dry beans and dry pease, $15; orchard fruits, $12; cereals, $10; and hay and forage, $8.

AVERAGE VALUES OF ANIMALS IN INDIANA.

The increase in the number of live stock from 1890 to 1900 was not great, the number of dairy cows even showing a slight decrease.

The average value of calves under 1 year of age in 1900, was $9.81. Steers ranged from $21.38 to $47.75. The average value of bulls was $38.93; of cows kept for milk, $31.84; colts, $24.95; horses, $43.15 to $57.36; mules, $44.31 to $60.81; asses and burros, $115.22. The average price of lambs was $2.30; ewes, $4.02; rams and wethers, $4.81. Average price of hogs, $3.67; and of goats, $1.99.

VALUE OF ANIMAL PRODUCTS IN INDIANA.

Following are the values of the different items of the Animal Industry in 1899, as given by the Twelfth Census:

Wool, $1,491,743; Mohair and goat hair, $282; Milk, Butter and Cheese, including the value of milk sold or consumed, and of all butter and cheese made, $15,739,594; Eggs, $7,441,944; All Poultry raised, $8,172,993; Honey and wax, $219,110; Animals sold, $40,865,661; Animals slaughtered on farms, $8,016,595.

Total value of Animal products, $81,947,922.

TOTAL VALUE OF FARM PROPERTY, FARM INCOME, ETC.

As shown heretofore, the value of all crops in Indiana, was $122,502,274. Adding this to the value of Animal products, $81,947,922, gives $204,450,196, which constitutes the total value of farm products.

The value of products fed to live stock on the farms of the producers, was $48,469,400. Deducting this from the total value of products leaves $155,980,796, which is styled the "gross farm income." There were no reports of expenditures for taxes, interest, insurance, feed purchased for live stock, etc., so the net farm income could not be given.

EXPENDITURES FOR LABOR AND FERTILIZERS ON INDIANA FARMS IN 1899.

The total expenditure for labor on farms in 1899, including the value of board furnished, was $9,685,540, an average of $44 per farm.

For the different classes of farms, the average amounts expended for labor were as follows: $644 for nurseries, $520 for florists' establishments, $67 for dairy farms, $59 for vegetable farms, $55 for fruit farms, $51 for hay and grain farms, $41 for live-stock farms, $22 for sugar farms, and $16 for tobacco farms.

Fertilizers purchased in 1899 cost $1,553,710, an average of $7 per farm and an increase since 1890 of 99.8 per cent. The average expenditure was $32 for nurseries, $23 for florists' establishments, $8 for hay and grain farms, $7 for fruit farms, $6 for live-stock farms, and $5 for vegetable, dairy, tobacco, and sugar farms.

University—"An Educational Institution for Superior Instruction"—Webster

Indiana's famous "institution for superior instruction" offers most attractive and unusual features, combining as it does all the characteristics essential to

A Famous University

The feature of personal instruction permits its students to enter at any time and advance as rapidly as their ability and application will permit. Founded in 1850, this old institution has kept abreast of the times, constantly adding additional schools until it now offers a list superior to any educational institution in the West. Anyone, anywhere desiring a thorough technical knowledge in any of its branches should investigate.

FRAMPTON'S

School House Window Shade

THE BEST THERE IS!

BOTH PLEASING AND HEALTHFUL TO THE EYE. A COMMON-SENSE WINDOW SHADE THAT FILLS A LONG-FELT WANT. ENDORSED BY HEALTH OFFICERS AND SCHOOL PEOPLE EVERYWHERE.

Simple as is its construction and operation, it is difficult, in fact, impossible to describe in this small space FRAMPTON'S PERFECT WINDOW SHADE. It is made of soft-finished duck, and suspended from a single cord passing through an automatic catch pulley, and so constructed and arranged that it can be raised or lowered instantly, or reduced in size ¼, ½ or ¾, and manipulated so as to shade the window at top, bottom or middle, leaving as much of the rest of the window unshaded, as desired. No such convenience for regulating and absolutely controlling the admission of light or sunshine through a window was ever before invented. It must be seen in operation to be properly appreciated.

A PERFECT WINDOW SHADE. (Patented Aug. 6, 1901.)

HIGH AUTHORITIES ENDORSE FRAMPTON'S SCHOOL HOUSE WINDOW SHADE

It was exhibited by Dr. J. N. Hurty, Secretary of the State Board of Health, at a meeting of the State and Provincial Boards of Health of North America. Endorsed by The Health Bulletin, organ of the State Board of Health.

LAWRENCE McTURNAN, Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, says: These (Frampton's) shades are constructed in such a manner as to give the best possible service for a longer period than any other shade that I have seen.

C. A. PROSSER, Supt. of Schools, New Albany, Ind.: We equipped our new High School building with 138 of Frampton's shades within the last month, and are supplanting all old shades with this device. I regard it as being the best on the market.

Other equally strong endorsements are given by T. F. Fitzgibbon, Supt. of Schools of Columbus, Ind.; Edwin S. Monroe, Supt. of Schools of Frankfort, Ind.; A. E. Highley, Supt. Schools, Jonesboro; John W. Dragoo, Trustee, Muncie; A. W. Cook, Trustee, Pendleton; Walter Hunt, Trustee, Noblesville, and many others.

The State Life of Indiana

The Greatest Insurance Company in the Central West

A Phenomenal Success

Victory Due to Merit

THE STATE LIFE, the great Indiana Insurance Company, was organized September 4, 1894. ¶Since that time it has won its way to the front rank amongst the greatest and most secure insurance companies of the world. To its credit stands the greatest record that any company has ever made, for its age. It will close the present year with upwards of Seventy-five Millions of Insurance in force. The success of the Company, while phenomenal in volume of insurance written, has been no less remarkable in the character of the business. The Company is financially a rock of strength. The fact that its security is unquestioned results from the requirements of the law under which it was organized. The Legal Reserve Compulsory Deposit Law is the latest and most complete measure enacted regarding the government of life insurance companies. Under the Reserve Law companies are required to deposit with the Auditor of State, full cash value on all their policies; thus the State of Indiana, as custodian, holds full value of all policies. The funds of the State Life are therefore beyond the control of managers to dissipate. The law designates the character of securities companies shall deposit, which is a further guarantee of the absolute security to the policy holder. ¶The State Life is the Company, above all others, that offers the brightest future and the greatest results to able and sincere men. It invites correspondence with those who desire to represent an institution which is solid, secure, successful.
